

CHARGES PRESIDENT LOBBIED ON TARIFF

SENATOR TOWNSEND'S SENSATIONAL STATEMENT WILL NOT BE CONSIDERED SERIOUSLY.

COMMITTEE IN RECESS

Next Week's Work Will Consist of Examination of Dozen Remaining Senators and Men Mentioned in Testimony Taken Thus Far.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, June 7.—Senators of the lobby investigation committee were of the opinion today that Senator Townsend's sensational charges that President Wilson himself had been virtually lobbying for the tariff bill would not be taken up by the committee as an issue unless some specific charges were made.

The committee was in recess today preparing for its next week's work, which will not only finish the testimony of the dozen senators yet to be examined, but will begin questioning the score or more of men whose names have been brought out in testimony as having presented special interests in Washington.

The list is a large one embracing men on both sides of the free sugar fight, lawyers, former members of congress, publicity agents and many others.

White House officials profess to be undisturbed by Mr. Townsend's charge and it was said the president would not take the stand to make a personal answer unless some specific charges were made against him.

Officials declared Mr. Wilson was confident that the people of the country would take the position that he was representing them in Washington and had the right to use all his influence to further legislation promulgated in the democratic platform.

It was denied that the "backstage club" had been welded to keep senators in line.

President Wilson will be welcomed before the committee if he desires to appear, said Acting Chairman Reed today, "but I see no reason why he should deny charges that have never been made."

Democratic members took the position that it remains for republicans to pursue inquiries on whether President Wilson had used "undue influence" with any democratic senators.

Senators Cummings, "Red" Wilson furnish the committee with the facts on information upon which he based his statement of "insidious lobbying" in Washington.

WOOD IS ACQUITTED BY DYNAMITE JURY AFTER A LONG WAIT

Jury Deliberates All Night Deciding to Acquitt Wood, Convict Collins, but Disagree on Atteaux.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, Mass., June 7.—After deliberating throughout the night the jury acquitted President William Wood of the American Woolen Company of the charge of conspiracy to injure the textile workers at Lawrence by "planting dynamite."

A disagreement in the case of Frederick B. Atteaux was reported. Dennis J. Collins, who turned state's evidence, was found guilty on two counts and not guilty on the other four counts of the indictment.

The first count charged conspiracy to injure the textile strikers and the second count conspiracy to injure unknown persons. The other counts allege conspiracy against certain persons and a plot to destroy property.

The case, one of the most sensational that has grown out of the dispute between capital and labor, was given to the jury at noon yesterday.

SEVERAL ARE KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

Two Miners Dead and a Dozen or More Injured in Disaster at Shamokin, Pa.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Shamokin, Pa., June 7.—Two miners were killed and more than a dozen injured today in an explosion in the Scott shaft four miles from here, operated by the Susquehanna Coal company.

Officials of the company announce that no men were entombed, but nine workers declared that they believed other men were still in the mine.

The explosion occurred in a second lot of a slope almost a mile under ground and the slope immediately caught fire.

John Wier, inside superintendent and his assistants organized a rescuing party and within an hour two dead and fourteen injured were brought to the surface. Of the injured nearly all of whom are foreigners, at least two are expected to die.

After several hours work the rescuing party came upon a group of 20 miners in the burning shaft. They were unhurt and were taken to the surface. It is not believed any more men are in the mine.

MAY CALL ELECTION BOND ISSUE JULY 1

Council Will Take Such Action at Meeting Monday if Report of Commission is Received.

Call for an election on July 1 to vote on the issuance of bonds for the construction of the proposed new concrete bridge across the Rock river at Milwaukee street will probably be made at the meeting of the city council next Monday afternoon. It was hoped to take such action today but the report of the railway commission on the plans has not yet been received and for that reason the council met this afternoon and adjourned until Monday. The commission will submit estimates as to the cost of construction as well as a proposal of any part of the plans, together with suggestions for alterations if any. The council can not call a bond election without stating the cost of election of the amount of bonds to be disposed of which must correspond with the estimated cost of the bridge.

BANQUET TO ENVOYS WHILE WAR RUMORS PERSIST FROM EAST

King George Entertains for Peace Delegates but Disturbances Are Threatened.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, June 7.—King George entertained the peace delegates of the Balkan states and of Turkey at luncheon at Buckingham palace to celebrate the signing of the treaty of peace. Other guests included the Duke of Connaught, Premier Asquith, foreign secretary Sir Edward Grey, and Viscount Morely of Blackburn, Lord president of the council.

While peace is being celebrated in London the situation in the far east is still threatening. The report comes from Constantinople but lacks official confirmation, that the European powers have decided to demand the demobilization of the Turkish and Balkan armies in order to bring about peace.

It is believed that the initiative in this action was due in a great measure to the Russian government.

The Russian government is said to hold the opinion that the Balkan government is acting under the pressure of military influence and that no sane course is possible unless at least two thirds of their army should be demobilized.

The position of the Serbian cabinet is said to be unsafe, but the resignation of the ministers had not been announced up to noon today.

Constantinople, June 7.—It is reported that several of the European powers have instructed their ambassadors and legations to take collection steps here and in the Balkan capital to demand the mobilization of representative armies.

REPORT DEMOCRATS PLAN ON A STRIKE

Jefferson County Assemblyman Leads Opposition at Madison in Demand for Immediate Adjournment.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 7.—Intimations are given out that a walkout of democrats is contemplated in the Wisconsin assembly. The problem of immediate adjournment put up by the senate is the cause of it all.

The assembly has adopted a resolution offered by Assemblyman Roessler of Jefferson county, floor leader of the democrats, fixing the date of final adjournment as June 28.

The senate has sent a message to the governor setting forth its plans for a recess. New bills are coming into the senate, and senate leaders claim there is little hope of adjournment before the middle of July.

It was stated today by one of the democratic members that they intend to hold a caucus early next week to decide upon plans for forcing an adjournment.

They have outlined, but which is to have the approval of the democratic caucus before becoming effective, provides that if an adjournment cannot be effected by the date of adjournment, the assembly will leave for Madison on the 28th of July to permit the republican majority to finish the work.

POSTOFFICE HEAD TELLS OF CHANGES IN THE DEPARTMENT

Burlison in a Statement Today Outlines Measures Adopted Which Have Increased Running Expenses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, June 7.—Postmaster General Burlison today gave out a statement summarizing various measures adopted or contemplated in the administration of the postal service. The statement says in part:

"During the ninety days of the new administration about 1,000 additional clerks and approximately 500 additional city letter carriers have been added to the various post offices throughout the country, and besides these additions some regular force approximately $1,000,000 has been authorized for temporary clerk hire, and about $500,000 for temporary city letter carriers."

"On March 5, 1913, there were about 2,200 vacant postmasterships of the Presidential grade, and some 300 have become vacant since. Of these more than 1,300 cases have been filled and about 1,500 nominated to the Senate."

Of the fourth-class postmasterships which were found vacant on March 5, 1,000 have been filled, and about 1,700 have been filled as the result of Civil Service examinations or inspectors' reports, leaving at present time about 1,000 of the Presidential grade, and some 2,800 of the fourth class to be disposed of. These are being dealt with expeditiously.

"Within the last sixty days 438 petitions for rural delivery routes have been disposed of, resulting in the establishment of 1,100 new routes, involving an annual expenditure of approximately $190,000. By the establishment of these new routes and the extension of old routes more than 100,000 people are now receiving their mail at their homes, instead of at remote post offices."

"In pursuance of the policy of expediting the delivery of mail, the Postmaster General has ordered the discontinuing of the backstamping of all ordinary mail, and heretofore has delayed its delivery, where from twenty minutes to one-half hour."

The condition in the railway mail service was found to be the most urgent where through mistakes in the economy; the clerical force had been so reduced as to effect efficient service and car space cut down to a dangerous point. With the advent of the parcel post system on January 1, which increased tremendously the volume of business, handied additional clerks and increased car space were most imperative. But nothing was done to relieve this, it being left to the new administration to restore the efficiency of this important branch of the service. Nine hundred and ten additional clerks have been added to the service since March 4, and in a year has been provided. Already a marked improvement is noted in this service."

The parcel post regulations have been modified so as to permit the delivery of mail addresses, without additional charge, at the post office of address with reaching stamps affixed.

"By an arrangement made with the Canadian postal service the rates of postage on daily editions of daily newspapers mailed to subscribers in Canada, who also are subscribers to the weekly edition, has been fixed at one cent a pound or fraction thereof, instead of at one cent for four ounces or fraction thereof."

In conclusion the statement says: "It is Postmaster General Burlison's desire and earnest endeavor to establish in the interest of economy and efficiency, uniform methods and practices throughout the service, and to direct postmasters to the best way of administering the postal facilities. To this end he proposes to keep close touch with their operations, and to bring the service to the highest possible degree of efficiency."

POSTMASTER GENERAL IS FIFTY YEARS OLD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., June 7.—Postmaster General Burlison, who has been in the post office since 1863, today turned fifty years old. Although still a comparatively young man Mr. Burlison may lay claim to being a veteran in the public service, having been elected to his first public office thirty years ago. With the exception of a period of less than three years he has been in public life continuously.

His recent appointment to the cabinet ended a service of nearly fifteen years as a member of the Texas delegation in the house of representatives.

"Going It Blind."

We Americans are given credit for doing a great many things in haste; and our mothers and grandmothers used to tell us constantly, "Keep the other good, old-fashioned traditions, that 'haste makes waste.'"

Is not this peculiarly true of most of us when we go "shopping"? Do we not fail to give the subject of our year-in-year-out purchase all the intelligent thought and consideration due so important a matter?

And do we not, as a result of this habit, do many things unwisely, things which are not just right and which might have been given far greater satisfaction if they had been decided upon with thrifty forethought?

It is on this account that we urge upon our readers the importance and economy of being well posted on the daily offerings of our advertisers.

One can not only plan one's expenditures with greater economy but can also make better and more satisfactory selections than when "going it blind."

FIGHT A BAD BLAZE ON THIRD FLOOR OF WOODSTOCK BUILDING

Early Morning Fire Extinguished After Hard Battle—Heavy Loss Suffered by Mrs. A. Martin.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Forcing their way through dense and almost suffocating smoke firemen early this morning located a fire in a room fitted with household furnishings in the apartment occupied by Mrs. A. Martin on the third floor of the Woodstock building, 11 West Milwaukee street, and after a hard battle lasting an hour and a half succeeded in extinguishing it before it had time to spread to the other rooms or the floors below. As a precaution against a possible second outbreak from some smoldering embers in the walls, a watch was kept and later it was found necessary to use a small quantity of chemicals, smoke betraying the presence of fire remaining.

Mrs. Martin is the heaviest loser from the fire, and her insurance will probably not cover more than one-fourth of her loss. The entire contents of the room, including some of the wardrobe and a valuable jewelry box, were lost. About two tons of ashes were taken from this room. Little water penetrated to the second and first floors and the damage, chiefly from the moving of their contents and the heavy smoke, is covered by insurance.

Mrs. Mary E. Woodstock occupied the first floor with her millinery store, Mrs. Olive Sadler, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sadler. The second floor, all but three rear rooms in the third story were tenanted by Mrs. Martin. The damage to the building is estimated at about $1,800, and is covered by insurance.

The presence of fire in the building was discovered soon after five o'clock by Mrs. Martin through the smoke which penetrated into her apartment. She hastened to the room of Mrs. Frank Sadler on the second floor, and notified her of the fact. Mrs. Sadler attempted vainly to reach the fire department by telephone, not being able to get central, and then raising a fire alarm by shouting to men across the street to turn on alarm. They paid no heed to her appeal, but finally a newsboy ran to the station and summoned the firemen. Men and apparatus from all three stations responded, the west side firemen arriving in a few moments time.

Not a trace of smoke was seen by the men when they drew up in front of the building, and the fire was accounted for the failure of the men on the street to answer the call for help. As soon, however, as they found out that the smoke was in the building, they were directed to the third floor, where they were difficult to penetrate it, and even harder to locate the blaze.

The first efforts of the firemen in the face of this obstacle were directed to the third floor, where they found a fire in the room of Mrs. Martin. To do this they were forced to break open a number of windows in the rear rooms and also some locked doors. The fire was located in the storeroom, the door of which was forced open. The firemen found a mass of flames and chemicals appeared to make no impression on them. Two lines of hose were laid, one being raised by the aerial truck, and the other by the fire engine. But one of these was used, and the smoke sparingly as possible consistent with the subjection of the fire.

The flames burned through the ceiling of the room and great underneath the roof of the building, and did not penetrate through. So intense was the heat that the varnish on the hall doors and wainscoting was scorched and the walls were blackened with smoke. Furniture, rugs, and other household furnishings in the rooms occupied were damaged by smoke and water and heat.

Chief Klein was very pleased with the manner in which the police and firemen worked, and he highly appreciated the work of the police who were of great assistance, and took pains to safeguard the property in the building, carrying that most with tarpaulin, and covering the rest.

There was no danger of the fire spreading to adjoining buildings as the Woodstock is separated from these adjoining by thick fire walls.

RIBOT PESSIMISTIC CONCERNING FUTURE OF FRENCH PEOPLE

Former Premier of France Declares That Alcoholism, Tuberculosis and Want of Hygiene Decimate Country.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, May 7.—"The French people is becoming obliterated, alcoholism, tuberculosis, and the absence of adequate hygiene decimate the country," is the opinion of Alexandre Ribot, as expressed recently before the Hygiene Social Alliance. "Our people must be instructed in the perils that menace us," the speaker continued; "we must acquire all the resources and strength of the government successfully to combat the dangers."

This pessimistic view of the future of the French people was shared by another prominent Frenchman, Leon Bourgeois, who also has served his country as Premier. M. Bourgeois declared that although the death rate of tuberculosis had fallen in England and in Germany to 11 for 10,000 population, in France it was 22.5 for 10,000. The general mortality in France, notwithstanding the progress of medicine and surgery, was still from 18 to 19 per 1,000, while in the United States it was 12.5, and in the Scandinavian and other countries it did not exceed 14 per thousand.

"Indifference to these conditions, and national inertia, imperil the very existence of the French people," was the closing declaration of M. Bourgeois. French Millionaires Numbered Six hundred and sixty-six millionaires, in France, died in France in 1912. Reduced to dollars and cents this puts any man having $200,000 in the millionaire class. Nevertheless the total of inheritance in the republic for the year amounted to $71,000,000, and thirty of these six hundred and sixty-six millionaires left fortunes ranging from $200,000 to $400,000, eight from $400,000 to $1,000,000. Of the very wealthy three men left fortunes greater than $1,000,000.

Alfonso Dislikes Gloves. Alfonso XIII of Spain has a peculiar aversion to gloves and refuses to wear them, even on great state occasions. In the beginning the strict etiquette of the Court of Spain was maintained, but now the young King's independence is taken as a matter of course.

Alfonso has also a keen and quick eye, and he relates this story of an incident in the Pyrenees. Passing through a village the royal automobile misbehaved and the royal traveler alighted to direct the royal chauffeurs in making repairs. The Mayor of the village, struggling into a car and his best clothes and hat, came forward to offer assistance. King asked him to show him around the village and the two men left the car in the road and walked through the town.

A picture of the Mayor was a picture of Alfonso, but wearing white gloves. This caused the King to approach and examine the picture closely. "Never have I worn white gloves," said Alfonso. Then the Mayor came forward covered with confusion and explained. The picture was originally of Alfonso XII, the King's father. When son followed father to the throne the thrifty Mayor depicted Alfonso XII, painted on the original canvas. He had not however, known about the gloves.

Follows Tolstoy's Theory. Following in the footsteps of the late Count Tolstoy are interested in the example set by a Russian of great wealth, Alexis Savaroff, who spends one-half of his day as a man of fashion and the other half as a paper hanger. He has a very simple life, very few friends, and is very much interested in the five per cent penalty provided for failure to pay the tax assessed on or before June 30.

All corporations are assessed one per cent of the net income of $5,000. Notices of the amounts due are sent out the following month after the receipt of the return showing a tax liability. If the tax is not paid by June 30, a penalty of five per cent is added and if it is not paid within 30 days one per cent additional is added for each month it remains unpaid.

The corporation tax has been in force for the past several years. Many corporations, quite generally, are paying their taxes on time. Many are paying in advance of the collection notices.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

In spite of unfavorable weather conditions visitors depart expressing appreciation of the hospitality.

The fifteenth annual session of the Wisconsin Grand Council United Commercial Travelers closed this morning with the installation of the newly elected officers at the convention hall, East Grand. Grand Council John H. Noble of Green Bay conducted the ceremonies which were attended by a large number of the travelers' order.

The officers installed are as follows: Grand Council E. U. Lochter, Eau Claire; grand junior council, H. B. Richards, Milwaukee; grand secretary, T. A. Wensink, Milwaukee; grand treasurer, T. A. Wensink, Milwaukee; grand conductor, W. F. Raetz, Manitowish; grand page, A. E. Banderob, Oshkosh; grand sentinel, B. A. Honeycom, Madison; executive committee, R. H. Worth, La Crosse; P. Moore, Green Bay; G. C. Thomas, Appleton; and C. M. Griffin, Superior.

The delegates to the supreme council meeting at Columbus, Ohio, the last week of this month are named: John H. Noble, Green Bay; C. E. Evans, Janesville; and R. A. Cross, P. Moore, Green Bay; G. C. Thomas, Appleton; and C. M. Griffin, Superior.

One of the important actions taken by the Grand Council was the discussion and resolution presented relative to excess baggage rates. A. P. Fleckenstein, secretary of the Madison council, told of the work which he had been commissioned to undertake a year ago at the session at Sheboygan relative to seeking an equalization of the baggage rates. He told of the discussion before the supreme grand lodge at Columbus and later before the inter-state commerce commission at Washington.

There has been an advance in the excess baggage rates of thirty-three and a third per cent in the past two years on all the roads, since the agitation for two-cent fares has been taken up. Of the nine roads who have this rate in vogue, two of them are now contesting it in the courts, but the raise in the baggage rates has been general.

GINK AND DINK. IF PETIE AND JOSIE SHOULD EVER MEET!

Port Snap Shots

The kicks against the big league umpires continue to be registered. It seems as though the best of the arbitrators are passing and that new material is not forthcoming.

Manager McGraw probably is being warned by the poor showing of pennant winners the year after they cop the flag, and already is making desperate efforts to get his machine into running order again. McGraw never believes in allowing the sentiment to get the better of his judgment as to whether or not he should carry a former star because the latter has helped to win pennants for him. He is continually on the lookout for new material whether it is finished or not and when a veteran shows signs of slowing up, out of the line-up he goes.

Arthur Pelky, who delivered the punch that made Champion Luther McCarthy take the final count some time ago, is the oldest member of a family of thirteen children. More food for reflections of those who continue to believe that number an outlaw child of the great god, Luck.

Johnny Dundee will have to step lively if he wishes to prevent Ad Wolgast, former champion lightweight, from becoming a member of the come-back class. Wolgast has been taking a special course of training, and as he realizes that this bout will determine whether or not he is to be regarded as a runner once more, the battle June 10th at Vernon, Cal., should stand out as a remarkable one.

Sweden will send its hop, step and jump champion, Lindblom, to America soon to compete with Americans at the international games to be held at Grant Park, Chicago, June 23 to July 6. Lindblom will compete against T. J. Ahern, winner of the 1908 hop, step and jump event. He holds the world record with a mark of 48 feet, 11 1/2 inches. Lindblom's best distance is 48 feet 5 inches.

Members of the Cleveland Naps team who have been studying Cy Falkenberg's delivery all year are a unit in declaring that it is not alone his fadeaway that puzzles the batsmen. "Falkenberg's success this year," says George Kahler, one of the Cleveland pitchers, "is largely due to the fact he gets on his fast ball. His fast stuff is much better than it was last year, but it is his fast one that he counts upon to turn the trick."

Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, has made a good start on his 1,446-mile hike from New York to Minneapolis, Minn. He expects to make the distance in 60 days, not counting Sundays. The seventy-four-year-old walker doesn't believe in walking on the Sabbath.

There is a Polish seminary at Orchard Lake, Michigan, the baseball team representing which has won 21 games in a row. The men don't care who they play or when, but take on all comers. They haven't a particularly strong pitching staff and depend generally on their hitting to win the game. Another peculiar fact is that there is not a lefthanded hitter on the team.

The federal league continues to move along. The organization seems to be getting along as well as sanely financed than any other which has thus far attempted to vie with the two big leagues for a portion of the receipts poured into baseball coffers by the fans. Should it survive the perilous winter, it will rest on a much firmer basis next season and thus turn out a strong competitor to the circuit controlled by Ban Johnson and Thomas J. Lynch.

VARSITY BASEBALL SERIES NEAR END; TENNIS PAYS WELL

Next Two Weeks Will Witness Completion of Yale-Harvard and Princeton-Yale Series of Games.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, June 7.—The next two weeks will witness the completion of the Yale-Harvard and Princeton-Yale baseball series, and the alumni and undergraduates of these universities are awaiting the outcome with more than usual interest. Yale has an unusually strong team this year and the Elis will win badly against their ancient rivals. The Yale-Princeton series began way back in 1868, when Thomas Hooker and E. A. Van Wagener were the captains of the competing teams in the initial play. Since that date 112 games have been played of which Yale has won 63 and Princeton 48, with one game, in 1890, a tie. The Harvard-Yale series began in 1883, and to date 38 games have been played, Yale having won 19, Harvard a winner in 37 and Yale 47, with one tie game in 1905.

In the beginning the play was far different from the finished baseball games of today. In this connection a description of the first Yale-Harvard game is not untimely. The contest, which was not a varsity but inter-class match, was played at Worcester, Mass., July 28, 1883, between the Yale and Harvard classes of '89. The Elis players wore uniforms consisting of flesh colored shirts, with a Yale monogram interwoven with the numerals '89, blue trousers and canvas shoes. History of that date failed to record the Harvard outfields. The Yale nine won the game by a score of 36 to 23, with a ninth inning rally, being eight runs behind Harvard at the opening of the final session.

The game, which required four hours and thirty minutes to complete, had a regular fiction climax. With one out, three runners on the bases and two runs needed to tie the score, De Grove drove a home run in far center. This hit scored more than the necessary runs to win the game but as in those days the play continued until three putouts had been made an additional score was thus secured before the play terminated. Of the members of the Yale team there were living at a very recent date four of the original nine that thus inaugurated the Yale-Harvard baseball series.

Tennis International Game. With eight countries competing for the Davis Cup, emboldened in the world's lawn tennis championship, there can be no further question as to the international status of tennis. The game, whether played upon grass or clay courts, is gaining steadily in popularity in all parts of the world. Some idea of the hold that tennis has secured upon the amateur sportsmen in distant parts of the globe can be gathered from the fact that during the international play between the all-British and Australian teams in Australia and New Zealand last winter, the net profits of the matches, derived from gate receipts and program sales, amounted to almost $20,000.

This sum was divided equally between the two tennis associations of the competing countries and has proved a considerable contribution so far as the antipodean authorities are concerned. It was the original intention of the Australian Association to retain its share of the fund to finance future international matches, both at home and abroad. Besides the associate bodies have lodged a test, claiming that the receipts should be divided equally among the members of the national body.

From Singapore comes a tale of difficulties of an entirely different type. It concerns the running off of the annual championship. Owing to the extreme heat experienced it is possible to play tennis only between the hours of 6 and 6:15 p. m. The seventy-five minute period exists from shortly before sundown until twilight prevents further play. The game is extremely popular and there are a large number of excellent players in the Straits Settlement district. Last season close to 600 racquet wielders entered the title tournament. With a field of this size it required more than five weeks of daily play to decide the championship in singles and doubles. An even larger entry is promised this year and the play is likely to extend over a period of six or seven weeks.

Following the footsteps of the English Association, the German athletic authorities have adopted a plan to encourage all-around athletic development by means of efficiency medals. The Imperial Committee of the Olympic games has worked out a system for the awarding of gold, silver and bronze medals for athletes who perform above a set standard in any one of five groups of athletic games and sports. The first group consists of swimming and gymnastics, the second of high jump and broad jump, the third of running 100 yards or a quarter of a mile, the fourth of fencing, discus, throwing, rowing, lawn tennis, wrestling, hockey and golf, and the fifth group includes long-distance running, swimming, skating, skiing, and cycling. The idea is that moderate efficiency in five of these things shall be rewarded by a bronze medal, silver medal will be given if the performances are repeated in each of four years, and a gold medal if the performances are repeated in each of eight years. A competitor more than 32 years of age will obtain the gold medal if he satisfies the tests only once. The schedule, which is confined to Germans, is no doubt well adapted to German tastes and to present German conditions.

Boy Sprinter May Travel.

The announcement that Arthur Robinson, the phenomenal boy sprinter of Mercurburg Academy, is considering an athletic tour of Europe this summer, has aroused much adverse comment in amateur track and field circles. The idea of a youth still in his teens traveling through England and the continent competing in numerous track meets savors strong of pot hunting, to put it mildly, according to veteran athletic followers. It appears to be the consensus of opinion among close followers of sport that such a campaign is both unwise from a physical and amateur standpoint. Robinson has an athletic career of great promise before him if properly handled. To attempt at his age to duplicate the feats of Arthur Duff, Nat Cartmell and other famous and seasoned sprinters appears to be carrying the craze for competition to the extreme. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that the Amateur Athletic Association will refuse to grant a permit for such a trip.

Race for Canoe Trophy. Because of the possibility of yacht races in 1914 for the America's Cup, the fact is rather lost sight of that there is to be an international race this summer for the New York Canoe Club international trophy. The Ganougue Canoe and Motor Boat Club of Canada is the challenger for the trophy, first offered in 1886. Six attempts have been made to lift this cup, the race conditions of which are similar to those governing the America's trophy now in the possession of the New York Yacht Club since 1886 and 1888. London canoeists endeavored to win the cup but failed. In 1890, '91, '92 and '95, Canadian clubs sent the fastest of their tiny racing craft after the trophy but were back empty handed. Now, after a lapse of eighteen years, during which time dust has been accumulating heavily in the silver pitcher in the custody of the New York Canoe Club, another effort will be made to take the prizes across the border.

MORNING BALL GAME GOES TO GREEN BAY

Defeats La Crosse Nine by Score of 3 to 2 and Plays Madison Team

La Crosse and Green Bay baseball teams representing the two councils attending the state convention played a close game this morning at the Driving Park, resulting in a victory for the Green Bay nine by the score of three to two. It was a lot of fun for the traveling men to get out for a game, as many had not had a ball in their hands for years. Several errors were made, which accounts for the lack of playing. Both teams were garbed in regulation suits and they made a neat appearance on the field. The game lasted for seven innings, pitching being a feature of the battle.

The lineup was as follows:
Green Bay—Woolz, ss; L. Beth, 3b; Starr, 2b; Manthey, cf; B. Dorn, 1b; C. Eckhart, lf; H. Manthey, rf; Annen, c; W. Bokhart, p.
La Crosse—Bratner, p; Taylor, c; Morton, ss; Leissner, 1b; Wigdel, 2b; Downey, cf; Ostheider, 3b; Bonevil, 3b; Ryan, lf.

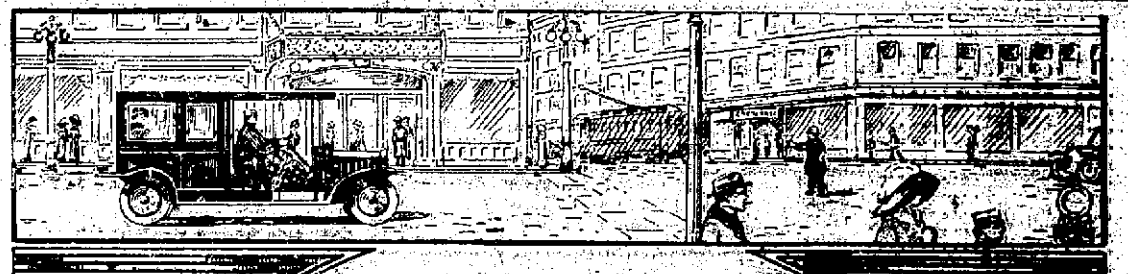

Score by innings:
Green Bay . . . 1 0 1 0 0 1 0

Effort Wasted. "What makes me really mad," said the woman, "is to spend minutes, maybe hours, trying to get hold of a white hair that shows up on my head like a dazzling light, yet which is tantalizingly elusive when I try to catch it, and then when I do finally separate it from the brown hair and give it a vigorous pull to find that I have pulled out a good brown hair and left a white one still shining!"

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"There's a new-fangled plan to measure a man; and, say! it's a sure little thing. It has nothing to do with the size of his shoe, or the distance around his vest. It isn't his length, or his width, or strength. It isn't his family name. It isn't his name, or his eyes. It isn't his grip on fame; it isn't his race, or his face or place—it's: Can he deliver the goods? And it means he's O. K. in every old way if you say 'He delivers the goods!'"

This little standard of measurement is from the pen of Hugh Kahler, in the Wells-Fargo Messenger, and while it was published to stimulate ambition in the ranks of the employees of this great corporation, it contains a message for struggling humanity everywhere, and points the way to success.

This glad month of June, when nature is fulfilling her mission and "delivering the goods," with lavish hand, the schools of the country are turning loose a little army of graduates whose ambition is to find a place in the busy ranks of toilers and work out for themselves a destiny.

They will discover, early in the game, that the great school of life is more exacting than the school of preparation. Through their text-book experience, they have been encouraged by the old saw, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." But the world they are about to enter is a world of doing and not a world of trying, and the demand everywhere is for people who can "deliver the goods."

This outlook might seem discouraging were it not for the fact that the commercial and industrial world is equipped with a primary department, for the fact is recognized that the boy or girl, from any kind of a school, is largely a theorist, and so provision is made for practical training.

It is fortunate for the coming generation that the educators of the land have at last come to realize conditions, and are doing all in their power to encourage practical education, through manual training, domestic science, and industrial and agricultural departments.

The boy who discovers himself before he leaves school, has made the most important discovery of his life, and the chances are that he will be "delivering the goods" long before his less fortunate companions get out of the "trying" list.

The most of us are not large enough in mind to grasp and master more than one occupation, and the boy who is fortunate enough to find out what this one thing is, before he enters active life, has made a long stride toward the ranks of the "doers."

In speaking with Prof. Beardsley, the other day—the man who has had so much to do with manual training in the Chicago schools—he said: "The average boy in the city leaves school at the age of fourteen. He goes to work at the first job that offers, don't like the work and tries another, and keeps on changing, and by the time he is nineteen, falls in love, gets married on a ten-dollar salary, and then, with increasing demands for money, he's more than likely to 'join' the criminal class and become a youthful bandit."

These conditions were so prevalent in Chicago, that they became a menace and the school board, under pressure, was obliged to establish a department to aid the boy in discovering what he wanted, to do, and to what line of work he was best adapted, and thus keep him interested in school work during the most critical period in his history.

The plan is working all right, and if it were generally adopted the problem of destiny, for the average boy, would be nearer solution. The boy is not to blame for not knowing what line of work to tackle, when he leaves school, and it is beginning the question to charge the responsibility to the home, because the school is where it belongs, and every honest educator, who is broad enough to grasp the situation, admits the fact.

In this land of equal privilege and great opportunities, people who "deliver the goods" are so common that they excite but little attention. The two hundred and fifty thousand miles of railroad, which spread over the country like a spider web, are manned with an army of faithful employees, who perform their work so quietly, and yet so efficiently that the arteries of commerce throb with life, at every turn of the wheel.

These conditions prevail in all the industries and professions, for honesty is a common virtue, and ability to perform, is just as common. The average housewife and housekeeper, whose little world is largely represented by the four walls which surround her, is faithfully performing a work of greater importance. She seeks neither praise nor commendation but is happy when the companion, who trudges along the pathway with her, smiles in recognition.

So much is said, nowadays, about success, the top of the ladder, and going to the front, that we are apt to overlook the multitude of busy toilers who help to keep the world sweet, and a desirable place in which to sojourn.

The thought which Mr. Kahler wanted to impress was not along the line of ambition to accomplish some great thing. The "goods" of life are common everyday affairs, and all of us are interested in their delivery. They are like an endless chain in which every toiler is a link. When the mechanism runs smoothly, every link bears its proportion of the strain.

The avenues are so closely interwoven, that their interests are mutual. The home, the church, the school, the office, the farm, the store, the shop and factory, are the warp and woof which enter into the fabric of American life, and the goods are being so faithfully delivered that the weaving process goes on with monotonous regularity.

Robert Hubbard's "Message to Garcia" made his name famous around the world, but the boy who stepped out of the ranks, and carried the message for President McKinley, was long since forgotten. Why? Because he represented a type of boys so common that they attract but little attention.

You and I are privileged to live in a land and at a date in history where the goods are being faithfully delivered, every day of the year. Are we carrying our share of the burden?

EXPURE-MOMENT

The Artistic Temperament. The folks, they all just gather 'round, And stare at him without a sound, In admiration rapt they gaze And love him for his winning ways. And call him they all pover near And whisper, 'Ain't he just a dear? It seems they can't get close enough, They are sincere; it is no bluff, It's worth a trip of many miles When baby smiles.

But they do not remain to gaze, They scatter fifteen different ways. They dash out to the open air, Glad to escape, most anywhere. They jump through windows to the ground And smash the glass with fearful sound. They do a lot of funny stunts And all try to escape at once. They make for far-off woody dells, When baby yells.

This, That and the Other. Richard Carle and the writer attended a moving picture show recently and in one of the pictures Carle recognized an old friend, an actor whom he hadn't seen in years. The man in the picture was bent over reading a paper. "Why doesn't he look up?" we asked. "He doesn't dare look up," said Carle. "I loaned him $50 nine years ago in New York and he probably knows I am in the audience."

The Missouri legislature is asking again: "What is a sausage?" There is a suspicion that a sausage nowadays is made of almost anything excepting sausage. But to answer the original question, and it is a shame to do it, has been answered the same way ever since Joe Miller wrote his famous joke book. A sausage is a hamburger steak in tights.

It takes a lot of sand to embark in the cement sidewalk business. Amos Butts, ice cream and undertaker, expects to branch out soon and run a hair dressing parlor in connection with his present business. The ladies' aid have been dickerin' for a quart of ice cream and if they get it will hold a social on the parsonage lawn in the near future. It is pretty hard to give a kid a bicycle nowadays. He wants an oat mobile or nothing.

The Silver Cornet band met for the first practice of the spring season last evening and several new members was broke in. It seems every time the band gets new members it plays wusser'n it ever did before. The common council is thinking of passing an ordinance making it unlawful for the band to take on any new members. Then the old band would finally peter out some day as one of the members passes away once in a while. After the old members all died or moved out of town there wouldn't be no band, and that is really the intention of the new ordinance.

Anse Frisby bought a lawnmower a year ago this May and he didn't see it again until along in October when Hank Tumms returned it. Everybody in the neighborhood took turns usin' it exceptin' the feller that owned it.

ENGLISH MAY LEAVE CRICKET FIELD FOR BASEBALL DIAMOND

National Game is Facing a Crisis—Public Complaints That Game is Too Slow—Gate Receipts Poor.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, May 7.—Baseball is invading the English people are beginning to look to the American game as a substitute. Germany is awakening to a deep interest in outdoor sports with the holding of the next Olympiad and Berlin has won Cuba and is making rapid strides in Central America, and it has been introduced with marked success among the savages of Northern Luzon as a vent for their energies that in the past have been expended in head hunting and looting. In England the question is becoming daily more interesting and the situation here today gives rise to the question: whether baseball will not become the national game instead of an American pastime with the logical outcome of international contests at the end of the season.

England's national game, cricket, is facing a crisis. The people are complaining that it is too slow, and it is being compared, greatly to its disadvantage, to the snap, speed and sustained interest in baseball. Gate receipts for the national championship matches have fallen fast, and cricket "fans" are worried over the future of the game. Cricket followers want exactly what the baseball public occasionally clamors for, more hard hitting. The great complaint is that the players of the present day are given too much to safe play, instead of taking chances by hitting the ball hard. A game which requires two days seldom furnishes any exciting finishes, and it is not so much to Americans, but one of the complaints against cricket today is that the players loaf at their work. They stroll out to the field, take long rests for tea, and generally waste time. Some newspapers are discussing changes in the rules, and among other suggestions are harder grounds and a "liver" ball to make play swifter.

But a cricket-loving factor is being heard with considerable insistence. Cricket not meeting the need of the day in England, baseball is being seriously considered as a national substitute, and the question arises: which great American game will not become the summer pastime of the British Isles by no means idle gossip. Proposals have been made seriously by a number of English sporting writers that the American game be given a trial. These men are disgusted with the state of cricket and declare any hope of reforming that game is exceedingly remote, with the present attitude of the English people here.

Baseball has already reached some degree of popularity in Ireland, and a number of teams are playing ball in the Midlands. Several teams are planning to play this summer in London. Among these are the "Lions" who are composed exclusively of the employees of a London branch of an American firm, and the Columbia Park Boys Club of San Francisco, now visiting England, and who intend to introduce the game among school boys here.

Of the many auctions of art treasures and personal mementos which are a frequent feature of London life, the most interesting was the sale of the treasures left by Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema.

Tadema was not only a painter, he also designed furniture and decorated houses. His own house in St. John's Wood was one of the most remarkable in London not alone for its store of valuable art objects, ancient and modern, but for the personal souvenirs from his travels which were so rich in it. The forty-five panels of the hall, all done by eminent artists as gifts, are world famous. These panels, together with all the other art works, are being sold by the artist's daughter, Sir Gerald's daughter, Miss Alice Blight of Philadelphia.

It is a very unusual thing for a British Ambassador to resign, for the position is a high one, and greatly coveted. The health of Sir Gerald, however, is the cause of the retirement, in the case of Sir Gerald, but this was not accepted, and many surmises and suggestions have been voiced.

One Government paper, the Manchester Guardian, usually very well informed, has come out candidly to say that Sir Gerald's retirement can be traced to the fact that "he was certainly not such a success at his previous activity in the diplomatic field, had led on to expect. He arrived in Constantinople in the very thick of the Young Turkish honeymoon, when our prestige, one month after the revolution, stood perhaps even higher than at the time of Lord Stratford de Redcliffe. Within six months that prestige was gone, and strange to say, we even find the British embassy's name involved in that obscure and somewhat unsavory incident, which is known as the counter revolution of April, 1909. And that prestige was never restored till the outbreak of the present war (of which, by the way, we had no previous information) when the magnificent diplomacy of Sir Edward Grey himself revealed to the Turks that England could still be relied upon in the hour of their misfortune.

Bird on Chimney Suffocated.
A dead pigeon dropped down the chimney of a Glasgow (Scotland) house the other day while an aged woman named Elizabeth Hotchkiss was seated at the fire-side. The bird scattered the ashes of the grate upon the woman, with the result that she was severely burned. It is thought that the pigeon had been sitting on the chimney head and was suffocated.

MEANS BETTER PRICES MOTOR TRUCK OF FREQUENT VALUE TO THE FARMER.

Helps in Getting Goods to Market Quickly—Co-operative Scheme Might Be Put in Force.

The rapid changes in market prices of fruit and produce from day to day have much to do with the farmer's profits. By placing his goods in the commission man's hands at the right instant he is often able to realize several dollars more on a single day's harvest. The importance of a swift and reliable motor truck in assisting him to do this can hardly be overestimated.

Aside from the farmer the motor truck is also winning a place in the hearts of the small miller. Flour is being hauled to the large cities by trucks from small towns which are not far enough away to make railroad shipment profitable. In one case a truck makes a round trip of 54 miles hauling 2 1/2 to 3 tons of flour on from 16 to 18 gallons of gasoline. Formerly it took two teams between two and three days to make the same trip. Another miller hauls flour to his customers within a radius of 50 miles of his place. Usually, too, old farm wagons are used for trailers, and the motors pull these along, well loaded, a feat that was impossible in the past.

Weary workers of the city who delight in spending their summer vacations on favorite farms have noted the swift introduction and extensive use of the motor car by the farmer. The wise tiller of the soil has even applied this knowledge to the transfer of his milk. There was a time that the small city boy delighted in riding early during his stay on the farm and riding to the creamery with the hired man in a light wagon. Now this is being changed so that a motor truck carries the milk. Co-operation among the farmers is also a factor, for any number in a community are making a combined investment, and finding that such an action makes a return in profits.

Numerous co-operative plans have been suggested since the farmer has begun to realize the value to him of motor-driven vehicles. Among these is one which would have the merchants of a central village work in touch with the farmers in outlying parts, so that each could have their goods delivered with the greatest dispatch and at the least possible cost. And with the attention now being given to the transportation of milk and cream to the cities this could be worked out on a schedule that would do away with the necessity of having milk standing for hours on hot and dirty platforms. In some cases the places would be close enough to the cities to make direct deliveries at lower figures than the railroads, and where the distance was too far less time would be necessary in hauling to shipping points.

MAKES A SAVING OF GASOLINE Dependable Cranking Device Does More Than Increase the Efficiency and Comfort.

"In addition to increasing the efficiency and comfort of an automobile, a dependable cranking device is a material factor in gasoline economy," says a well-known driver. "In driving around the city much of the fuel is consumed while the engine is running idle. At least such is the case when the car is not equipped with an efficient automatic cranking device. In city work, a driver rolls up to the curb, jumps out, makes a brief call and is off again to the next place. He often makes many such stops in a day. If he have no automatic starter he will let the engine run because he does not want to undergo the annoyance and the labor of cranking. To go through that operation 10, 20 or more times a day entails a great deal of energy and consumes time. Therefore, he lets the engine run idle so that he can step in and drive away without loss of time and without the outlay of physical effort.

If, on the other hand, his car is equipped with a dependable cranking device, he will stop his engine, no matter how brief his call may be, because he knows that all that is required to start it again is to press the button. Consequently the car so equipped is consuming no gasoline during these frequent stops and has that much advantage in fuel economy over the car that must be cranked by hand.

Use for Vacuum Cleaner.
Almost every motorist knows how difficult it is to remove dust and dirt from an automobile top and the upholstery. If you can have the use of a vacuum cleaner, that is the best method I know of.

Brushing a mohair top will remove the surface dust, both inside and out, but a lot of dust remains in the fabric itself, and it is impossible to remove this except by the means I have suggested. Of course, the outside of a rubber or composition top should be washed, and the cleaner used on the lining.

Even on the upholstery, whether of leather or cloth, the vacuum cleaner is splendid. It draws every atom of dirt and other accumulations from around the buttons, bindings, etc.

One of the hardest objects in the world to keep clean is an automobile, because it gathers dust with every mile it travels and even while standing idle in the street, so the annual spring cleaning should be as thorough as it can be made.

Take Their Payment That Way.
Some men want so much praise for an unselfish act that it amounts to liberal compensation.

Mrs. Henry Schmeling gave a linen shower for Miss Kate Stricker at Academy hall last evening. After having a most enjoyable time, the refreshments were served. Miss Stricker is to be married June 25.

Truly Devoted Mother. Gushing Parishioner (who is displaying the treasures of her establishment to the new year's wife) "And this is the precious pussy that I wanted you to see, Mrs. Leetern. Such a sweet disposition—almost human. She has just had the darlingest little kittens. Really, to see her with them is to witness the perfection of motherhood—er, Cook! where are the kittens?" Cook (tersely)—"She ate 'em all, mum."

Gastronomic Feast. My niece, aged four years, saw her grandmother take some medicine contained in an unusually large capsule. When the feat had been accomplished the astonished child ran to me with the exclamation: "O aunt, grandma swallowed her medicine—bottle and all!"—Exchange.

The increased activity of the atmosphere, remarked a few days ago, still continues. The area of low pressure that was in the upper Lake region and Upper Mississippi valley yesterday has now reached the lower St. Lawrence valley, and the area of high barometer that was in the north-eastern Rocky mountain region now occupies the upper Mississippi valley, the upper Missouri valley, the North Central states. The greatest drop was in this vicinity where a change from 72 or 70 to 44 or 42 degrees was recorded in 24 hours.

Feasting and Dancing. It is good to make a feast, but not to make a trade of feasting. The earl of Leicester, knowing Queen Elizabeth was much delighted to see a gentleman dance well, brought the master of the dancing school to dance before her. "Plah," said the queen, "it is his profession, I will not see him." She liked it not where it was a master quality, but where it attended on other perfections. The same may we say of feasting.—Thomas Fuller.

Use Bellows to Skin Goats. Great quantities of Mohaw goatskins are imported from Aden, on the Gulf of Aden, into this country, many skins coming from Africa. The Abyssinians and Somalis are considered the most expert in skinning goats. The former rarely permits his knife to touch the animal after killing and during the skinning process, and by the means of a bellows removes the skin in an excellent condition. Somali women are also very adept in this art and exercise great care throughout.

Most Children Have Worms. Many mothers think their children are suffering from indigestion, head aches, nervousness, weakness, constipation, which they are victims of that most common of all children's ailments—worms. Fevers, ill-tempered children, who lose and grind their teeth, with bad breath and colicky pains, have all the symptoms of having worms, and should be given Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, which expels worms, regulates the bowels, tones up the system, and makes children well and happy. Kickapoo Worm Killer is guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail, Price 5c. Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Philadelphia and St. Louis. People's Drug Co.

Side Lights On The Circus. Business By D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

Two weeks ago yesterday the body of one Robert Campbell was found floating in the Huron river, in the suburbs of New York City. Robert Campbell or "Bob" as he was familiarly known around the old Adam Forepaugh show, started in business in about 1870, and was a well known figure in the show business. He was a fair education and was naturally bright and smart and it was not so many years until he became one of the big money-makers of the business.

He was for many years the advance agent of the Forepaugh show and although I had known him for some years, here was where Bob Campbell and I became intimate friends. All this was a long time ago, and I have often a little note from Bob telling me of something that was a little out of the ordinary that he wanted me to look out for when we showed in the town.

It was along in Ninety-one or two I think that he quit the circus business and settled in Chicago and organized what is still known as the American Bill Posting company. Mr. Campbell had been a partner in the former of the new venture, which was one of the big money-makers of Chicago almost from the start.

Bob remained in the business for some years and made quite a fortune and then sold his share to Burr Robbins for $150,000. He then took his family and made a tour of Europe and after a long rest, they settled in London where he was a partner in the same line as the one he organized in Chicago years before.

This also was a money maker and some few years ago Mr. Campbell sold out his business interest in New York City and it was his custom to leave home about 9 o'clock in the morning take his lunch down town, but he would always be at home for six o'clock dinner.

Two weeks ago yesterday morning Mr. Campbell left for his office, saying to his wife that he would be home in plenty of time for dinner. About four o'clock in the afternoon he telephoned to his wife that he would not be home that evening and he would not be able to get home until late, and for them to wait dinner for him. But as the evening wore on Mrs. Campbell became nervous and fearing something had happened to him, she telephoned two or three of his friends to find out his whereabouts, but none of them knew anything of him. And the first news that Mrs. Campbell received was at 10:30 the next morning when she was told that her husband had been found floating in the river. Mr. Campbell had on his person a watch studded with diamonds, and rubies said to be worth $1,000, quite a few more of the same valuable papers, all of which were missing which led to the belief that he had been murdered and thrown into the river.

Mr. Campbell besides his wife had four children, two sons and two daughters, the oldest son being in school in France. Mr. Campbell and his family were booked to leave New York on the 14th of June and spend the summer in Europe.

One of the New York papers in speaking of Mr. Campbell and his business interests said that he was a man who had accumulated quite a little more than all million dollars and that he had been a successful business man and a credit to his class gentleman and a credit to his class.

A few days ago I met an old gentleman on the street who shook hands with me and called me by name, and he said "I know when I left home I told my wife that I was going to be sure and see you and thank you for a favor that you did me many years ago and up to this time I had not the slightest idea who you were." I said "I don't know who you are, but I have never had any transactions with any kind with him." He said "You know Janesville was our trading point for some years in the early seventies but in seventy-seven we started for the west with two covered wagons and seven head of cattle. We had our own cooking utensils and camped out all the way. The first day we made a short drive and camped near Cookville and after the next day's drive we had gotten far enough away so that I don't think anyone knew where we were. We were bound for north-west Nebraska and landed there too late to do anything in the way of raising anything that year.

Here we settled and the first year which was seventy-eight our crops were almost a failure and the little money that we had taken with us was well nigh gone. The next year which was seventy-nine the crops were better and we had a good crop of wheat and corn and showed a profit of eighteen miles from our home, and while we had scarce enough to live on, if the distance had been three times as far as that show, for we had that winter in Janesville and that it might be possible that we would see somebody that we had seen before. I had my wife and three children get tickets for the show and when I stepped up to the wagon to my great surprise we were selling the tickets and whether it was our poverty stricken appearance or what I do not know, but you gave us all tickets for the show and said that we were welcome to them, and those few passes to the show that day meant more to us than many dollars did later in life.

I had a visit with the old gentleman for more than half an hour and it was one that I thoroughly enjoyed. Recommended by People's Drug Co.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

THE SUPREME WORD.

The night has a thousand eyes,
The day has one,
Yet the light of the whole world dies
At set of sun.

The mind has a thousand eyes,
The heart but one,
Yet the light of the whole world dies
When love is done.

Throughout the ages alchemists strove to find some magic substance that would transmute the baser metals into gold, but they did not realize that it was a spiritual, not a physical, thing for which they sought. Love transmutes all things into gold. He who has love in his life sees the beautiful and good everywhere. For him the universe is transformed and there is in it nothing mean or ignoble. Love is proverbially blind to the bad. It has the discernment to see but the best in all creatures.

Love transfigures us morally, mentally and physically. Morally it takes from us the desire to overreach and injure others. Mentally it turns all our gifts into helpful and gracious channels. Physically it softens and beautifies our faces, lends a light to the eyes and a smile to the lips.

Love takes the bitterness from disappointment and the sting from sorrow. It plants outward flowers on the graves of its dead and inward flowers to shed fragrance over their memories. It admits no separation, but holds its objects closer because they seem to be away.

It blesses us all through the journey of life, closes down our eyelids when we fall asleep and accompanies us in our journey to the realm beyond the shadow.

In the storm of life, with its clouds of doubt and its rain of tears, the spiritual sunlight breaks through and forms a perfect rainbow, with one foot in the land of the living and one in the world of the dead. It is the rainbow of love.

At the gift of death all things else falter and fail. Words do not reach across, and the language we would vainly use from the other side falls into a meaningless jargon that is a mockery. Hope, bright eyed and joyous, pauses upon that brink, and as she looks at the blackness beyond, her smile dies and the light goes out of her eyes. Even faith, usually so confident and fearless, falters in crossing that abyss. But love, at the touch of the dread angel, only grows the stronger and binds us with a firmer bond to the one who has gone before.

Hope may be palsied by fear, and faith may fall in doubt, but love loves on. Unquestioning and unafraid, it pierces through all seeming and goes direct to its object. It triumphs over death. Love binds the souls of those on both sides of the grave. It is the rainbow whose arch spans two worlds.

LOCAL COMMITTEES BUSY EVERY MINUTE

Every Detail of Entertaining The Crowds of Visitors Carefully Looked After.

There have been few spare minutes for the members of the various committees who had charge of the reception and entertainment of the U. C. T. convention which closed today. Inclement weather caused many visitors to return home last evening and E. C. Burdick, who had charge of the registration at the Myers hotel found that he was able to accommodate all the visitors at the hotels and that he was not forced to call on the numerous citizens who offered to accommodate the overflow. He desires that they be thanked for their kindness in responding to the appeal of the committee and regrets the inclement weather which prevented many from not staying over night in the city.

One of the busy men was J. S. Seidmore, chairman of the entertaining committee, who kept hustling for three or four days on last details and then appeared in the parade Friday, driving the dilapidated old rig, on which was a trunk, two old carpet sweeper brush and a little tin of Nicholson and Fish, two of the old time traveling men, members of the Janesville council.

W. E. Clinton was another busy committee man, and it was due to his efforts that the program and all its details, was placed in the hands of the various members, avoiding any confusion. The handsome badges were secured by Mr. Clinton and also the three busts which were appreciated. The dainty mirrors for the ladies being much sought for.

Janesville never looked gay with colors and bunting, and despite the rainy weather, the colors and flags retained their colors in a remarkable manner. Reeder was chairman of this committee and had his work all cut out for him in advance, ably following out the plans laid down.

George H. Williamson, was chairman of the parade held Friday afternoon and it was one of the finest showings ever held in the city. Unfortunately the rain prevented many from getting in line, but the line of march started on time and there was no hitch from start to finish.

T. E. Welsh, as chairman of the entire affair, with C. B. Evans and P. L. Munger as associate members were the three busiest men in Janesville for the past week. All little details of the work of the various committees had to be looked after and there were a hundred and one details to be handled at the moment.

The following is the list of the various committees who made the affair the success it has been:

ORDER CHANGE MADE IN TRAIN SCHEDULE ON FOND DU LAC LINE

Wisconsin Railway Commission Take Action on Petitions for Improved Service.—Report Received.

Acting on the petitions of residents of Watertown, Jefferson, Fort Atkinson, Juneau and other cities on the branch of the Chicago & North-western Railway between this city and Fond du Lac, the Wisconsin Railway commission on Wednesday, June 5, submitted a report of its findings and ordered the following changes made in the train schedules on that line.

That the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company extend its evening north-bound train No. 541 now scheduled to leave Janesville at 7:45 p. m. on to Fond du Lac, so as to provide a connection at Jefferson Junction with train No. 500 west bound, there at 7:35 p. m., and so as to provide a connection at Fond du Lac with its train No. 101 scheduled to leave there at 10:40 p. m.

That from Fond du Lac a morning train shall connect at Jefferson Junction with its train No. 606 east bound, due there at 6:05 a. m.

A copy of the Commission's report, signed by Commissioners David J. Harlowe, John R. Roemer, and Harold Erickson, was received by Mayor Fathers this morning.

Complaint as to the adequacy of the train service on the Fond du Lac line was first made by Herman G. Grube, Mayor of Watertown. He asked that the evening train which now arrives at Watertown about 9:30 p. m. be extended to Fond du Lac. A hearing on this matter was held on March 11, 1913, at the offices of the Commission.

In the meantime the Jefferson Promoters Club filed a petition alleging that no morning or afternoon connections for Madison at Jefferson Junction are provided by the railroad company, and that the lack of connection is greatly to the discomfort and inconvenience of the traveling public. In reply to this petition the Chicago & North-western enumerated the connections now afforded and asserted that the train service between Jefferson and Madison are largely controlled by through connections to and from St. Paul, Minneapolis and other northwestern cities. It alleged that traffic conditions do not warrant additional train service between Jefferson and Madison.

In view of the fact that the change in schedule or additional train service asked for in these petitions would directly affect the interests of other communities between Janesville and Fond du Lac the Commission on its own motion extended the investigation to cover the service on the entire line. Hearings were held on April 10, at the city hall, Jefferson, and on April 11, at the city hall, Janesville.

In its answer and at the hearings the railway company contended that consideration of the branch line under consideration is inconsistent with warrant additional train service. It pressed a willingness to readjust the present schedule if by doing so service more satisfactory to all concerned.

No. 179—A Seven-Room Shingled House. Size 24x40 feet

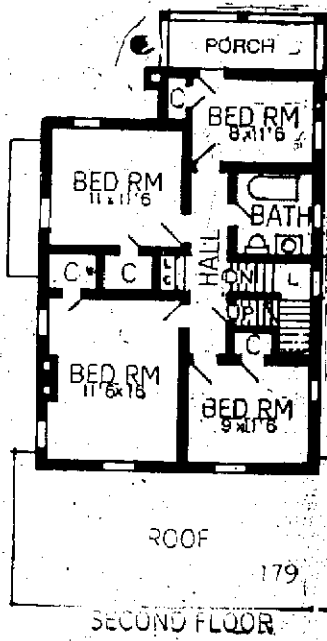

FIRST FLOOR

Large shingles laid 10 inches to the weather and stained a rich brown, together with brown trim and white columns, are the features of this exterior.

The plan is very compact, with large living room, dining room with built-in seat and china cupboard, and recess for buffet. A toilet room off rear hall is also a desirable feature. The kitchen is well arranged with ample cupboard space, sink with double-end drain boards, recess for range, and convenient broom closet. The refrigerator is in separate cold room, which also forms a vestibule entry to kitchen.

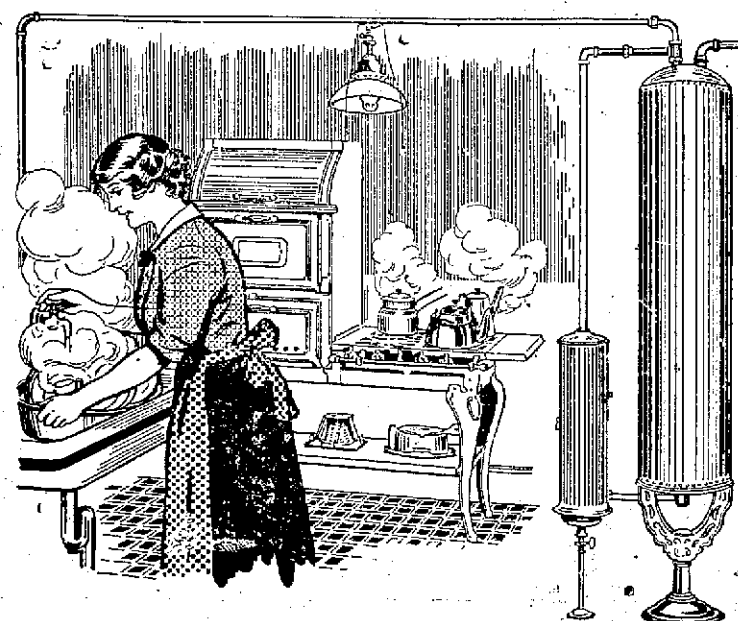

One of the four bedrooms is very large for a house of this size and the others are well planned to provide spaces for beds and other furniture. The attic is finished in one large room. Basement under entire house. This house should be duplicated for from $3500 to $4000.

SECOND FLOOR

Of Course, You Cook With Gas, But How Do You Heat Water?

Surely you do not keep a coal fire going in hot weather. Why have a coal range going at all when a Gas Water Heater will give you hot water all year 'round?

A bathroom without hot water in summer is a horrible thing to think of.

Remember a Gas Water Heater is economical, don't cost much and if you want, can be bought on very easy terms.

FACE A SIGHT WITH TETTER

Began With Pimple. Spread All Over Face. In Agony All the Time. Itched and Smarted. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Was Cured.

Moberly, Mo.—"My trouble began with a small pimple on the left side of my face and it spread all over my face and to my neck. It would be scaly and red when I got warm. My face was a sight. It looked very unpleasant, and it felt uncomfortable. My face was something awful; it just kept me in agony all the time. Some said it was tetter, and some said it was that awful eczema, but I rather think it was tetter. I had been troubled with it for about two years and tried many remedies but got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. "When I would wash my face with the Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment it would cool my skin and draw great big drops of matter out of the skin. You would think I was sweating; it would run down my face just as though I had washed it. It itched and smarted and I suffered in the day time most from the heat from the sores. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for a month and I was cured of it. I will tell everyone I know who has any trouble of the skin." (Signed) Mrs. J. Brooksher, Apr. 15, 1912.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

RACINE ENGAGES ENGINEER TO PLAN DISPOSAL PLANT

(Racine Journal News.) The proposition of J. W. Alvord, civil and sewage engineer of Chicago, to furnish the city with a comprehensive plan for the disposal of sewage, for the next twenty-five years, was accepted by the common council, in meeting as a committee of the whole. Mr. Alvord will receive for his services $2,400 and the total cost of the preparing of the plans will not be over $6,800. The report will not be completed until some time next year, but the work of preparing the plans will in no manner delay the constructing of trunk sewers as now planned by the city.

PARKS OF GRAND RAPIDS MAKING MONEY FOR CITY

Grand Rapids, Mich.—The city's plunge into municipal ownership of candy, ice cream, pop corn and peanuts in John Ball park looks like one of the big successes of the season. Reports to the board of park and cemetery commissioners show that the plan is working out precisely as Superintendent Eugene Goebel had said in his request that the board take the advanced stand and thereby utilize the park property for regular retail profits. There is one question bothering the board in order that the municipally owned stands may be conducted along business lines persons handling the daily receipts will be asked to give bonds. Deposits must be made with the city treasurer each day. The city's investment in 8,000 young trees at a total cost of $500 last fall is now bearing fruit. The 8,000 trees were planted in used city property in Greenwood cemetery and this spring every one is thriving handsomely. Soon the city will have a bunch of trees to offer to the public as a part of the municipal ownership plan in dealing in trees.

MANITOWOC TAKES STEPS TO MOTORIZE DEPARTMENT

By a vote of 11 to 2, the city council last night took the first steps looking to the motorizing of the entire Manistowoc fire department. Due to the efforts of Chief Edward Tabor, the committee on fire and water, and Chief Kvatz, a resolution was adopted instructing the clerk to advertise for bids for a combination hook and ladder and hose truck or chassis truck, whichever is most efficient power to drive the equipment to all parts of the city. The plan is to station the same in the north side station, in place of the present hook and ladder truck and hose wagon and dispose of four of the horses at present in use.—Manistowoc Daily News.

HOT PLATES PROVIDED POLICE AT GLASGOW

Glasgow, Scotland.—The policeman's lot in Glasgow should certainly not be an unhappy one. He is, in fact, a privileged man. He has just begun to provide her police men with warm food and tea while they are on duty. The city council has ordered the paving of South Broadway on the east side and Fourth and Fifth streets on the west side, with concrete, thirteen blocks in all.

MOVEMENT FOR PLAYGROUND IS SUPPORTED BY WACO

Waco, Tex.—For the first time in the history of Waco, the city authorities have gone on record as favoring the expenditure of money for a children's playground in one of the city parks. The matter was discussed at a session of the city commissioners, and at the request of Mayor J. H. Mackey, who took the initiative, the commissioners appropriated $10,000 for equipping Edgemoor Park, located in South Waco. The apparatus will be placed after the equipment has been installed. There are two other children's playgrounds in Waco, but both of them were made possible by reason of donations made by individuals.

OSHKOSH MARKETS BONDS WITH LITTLE DIFFICULTY

(Oshkosh Northwestern.) With but little trouble and in comparatively short time the city of Oshkosh has succeeded in getting the entire West Algona street bridge bond issue of $188,000 subscribed for. In fact, the applications, numbering 10, received to date total $200,000, which is over 10 percent in excess of the amount needed. The bonds, which are 4 1/2 percent and applications have not ceased to come in, for it was known that if the issue was oversubscribed the bonds would be distributed to the purchasers pro rata. It is probable however it is stated by Mayor Mulvey, that those who subscribed within the interest rate was fixed at but 4 1/2 percent will be given the full amount of their subscription at the new rate of 4 1/2 percent if they so desire instead of pro rata.

TEN MILES OF STREETS OILED IN MILWAUKEE

(Milwaukee Free Press.) Ten miles of city streets have been oiled already this season, thus establishing a record in Milwaukee. At a second session more than 15,000 square yards of asphalt repaving has already been accomplished, while the work is no going on on forty different street and alley paving contracts in different sections of the city. "In past years very little street work was started before June 1," explained Public Works Commissioner F. G. Simmons yesterday.

MUFFLER CUT OUT EVIL ATTACKED IN APPLETON

City Attorney Ryan is at work today on an amendment of the automobile ordinance making it an offense for drivers of automobiles and motor-cars to operate the muffler cut out within the city limits. This has been abused for several years by certain thoughtless drivers and promptly upon the passage of the amended ordinance the police will be instructed to arrest drivers opening the muffler cut out on their machines in the city.—Post.

SUPERIOR TO SELL BONDS IN AMOUNTS OF $100

To put out $65,000 bonds in denominations of $100 each and sell them to the public as has been done by Philadelphia and numerous other cities of the country is the plan of the city commission. The $65,000 bond issue is for the addition to the Matt Carpenter school which is to be built shortly. The commission advertised for bids on the bond issue and only one response was received. Five per cent was asked and the bonds call for only 4 1/2 per cent interest.—Telegram.

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES MUST OWN AUTOMOBILES

(Minneapolis News.) No more will city employees go joy-riding in city-owned machines and charge gasoline and repair bills to the city. By resolution the special committee appointed to investigate city ownership of automobiles Monday decided to sell to the employees all of the machines now in city service and allow the employees a stipulated sum monthly for maintenance and depreciation.

SHAKE-UP FOR POLICE FORCE AT DES MOINES

Des Moines, Ia.—Following the discovery by the police that a local newspaper had negotiated for a dictagraph six months ago for the purpose of certifying the rumors of graft and collusion between the police and disorderly houses, Chief of Police Jenny started a clean-up in police circles and William Maher, a veteran officer, was asked to resign. Other resignations are expected. The chief says he has affidavits from keepers of disorderly houses that raids had been tipped off by policemen and that the underworld paid for this information.

RESUME USING FLUSHER ON STREETS OF STERLING

The attachment to the street flusher which was broken last week, is expected within the next few days, when the work of putting the streets in shape will be taken up. It is the desire of the streets and alleys commissioner to flush all the pavements holding the side streets, then brushing them and getting them clean for the summer, after which it is believed there will be no trouble in keeping them in good shape.

Restrict Bee Keeping

City Attorney Ryan will submit to the city commissioners in a day or two a copy of a new ordinance drawn with a view to restricting the keeping of bees to certain territorial limits. Complaints have been made during the last few months concerning people raising bees in the city.—Appleton Post.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

MADAME RECAMIER. By Howard L. Rann.

Madame Recamier was a celebrated French beauty specialist who flourished during the reign of Napoleon Bonaparte and died at the age of 45 years without having contracted a solitary wrinkle. In order that she might not run out of initials, her parents named her Julie Adelaide Bernard, with the result that her visiting cards looked like the pedigree of a 32d degree Mason.

At the age of fifteen years, Mrs. Recamier was married to a French banker. In order to lift a mortgage, "East and Booth's" orchestra of Monroe will play Sunday, June 8, will be the last Sunday before Rev. Kvale leaves. There will be regular services at the Lutheran church with a special musical program in connection.

Miss Jeanette Tolson graduates next week from the Brdhead high school. The Railroad Company will commence moving the depot as soon as a force of men can be secured to do the work.

Ole Kaatrud has gone out to the Bowles farm, where he will assist during the summer. A social dancing party will be held Thursday evening, June 12, at the opera house. East and Booth's orchestra of Monroe will play Sunday, June 8, will be the last Sunday before Rev. Kvale leaves.

Sunday, June 15th, will be children's day in the churches and a program will be given at the M. E. church in the morning by the children of the Sunday school. The aged mother of Knut Andre and Anne Skallrud of this village died Wednesday the funeral services will be held at the M. E. church. Death was caused by complication of diseases incident to old age.

Albert Keesey spent Thursday in the pages of history. He was subject to fits of melancholy, owing to being obliged to open a saloon in his house and seeing his wife surrounded by members of the French nobility in knee pants and white silk stockings. As he was not what you would call a literary soul he would go up stairs and play solitaire while his wife ran the saloon. He had a sad life.

From all accounts, Madame Recamier put in most of her time at the photograph gallery, sitting for full length portraits of the rich and bewitching smile. She evidently had this smile copyrighted, for it appears in all of her pictures. It is said that between keeping up the saloon and paying for her husband's photographs, Mr. Recamier had a hard time making ends meet.

Madame Recamier is best known, perhaps, as the composer of a skin food and complexion renovator which she used with so much success that when she was sixty years of age she was proposed to by every stranger who visited her saloon. One time the Emperor Napoleon saw her complexion and invited her to become a member of his court, and on her refusal he banished her from the country and revoked the license of her saloon.

She opened up again, however, after the administration of General Bonaparte and for years did a flourishing business in belle letters, original poetry and other intoxicating fluids.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur of Long Beach, California, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ban for a few days. Lee Roderick, student at Columbus, Ohio, is home for the summer vacation.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

I read a modern story of deeds in distant lands; and every page was glory, and swords in brutal hands were whacking men to pieces. "Confound it," I said, "this tale, such waste of elbow grease is, methinks, of no avail." Said Dad, with gentle diction: "Why spend your hard-earned cash for modern works of fiction, when all such stuff is trash? Why read of bloody murder and crime, when you can read of the old master? They're better for you, Jack, than patent sticking plaster up on an aching back. The man who reads poor novels when there's so much that's fine as like a serf that grovels in some unlighted mine; he's like a cheap beach-comber who claws the mouldy rocks, go, find your dusty Homer, and read the stuff that knocks." I dug up Homer straightway, and held him in my hand, and said: "He is the gateway to all that's fine and grand." His wondrous, mighty story I shall not soon forget, for every page was glory and reeked with blood and sweat. His heroes swing their billes and brandish their shining foes, and soon I had the wildest and other things like those. I wearied of the squirmings of men with broken limbs; I'm reading now some sermons washed down with Sankey's hymns.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TOO BUSY TO BE HEALTHY.
A HARD working young business man was driven to his doctor by a bad case of indigestion. Just before the doctor prescribed a set of exercises to be taken five or six times a day. The business man took them six times the first day, three times the second, remembered them once or twice the next two days and then completely forgot them for the next ten. At the end of that time he came back to the doctor's office with a more violent attack of his trouble.

"Been taking your exercises?" asked the doctor.
"I haven't been very regular," admitted the patient.
"To tell the truth, doctor, I'm too busy to bother with those exercises. Can't you give me some kind of pills instead?"

The doctor happened to be a very independent practitioner. "Young man," he said, "you are just one of several hundred fools among my patients who are too busy to be healthy. If you want pills you can go elsewhere for them. I've given you the best medicine I know."

Too busy to be healthy! Over how many sick beds there might be written, "This patient was too busy to be healthy." On how many tombstones—if truth and tombstones were not such utter strangers—there might be engraved, "He was too busy to keep on living."

Another strenuous young business man has had to give up splendid position and take a complete rest for a year. It meant large loss of money and opportunity, but the doctor declared that the probable alternative would be lifelong invalidism. Twelve years ago when this man started upon his business career he was perfectly strong and healthy. Now what do you suppose has been the cause of this unhappy change? Simply that he was too busy to eat.

Cold bites gobbled at his desk when he needed a hearty hot meal, and prolonged fasts when he was too busy for even that cold bite, have been the order of the day for twelve years. What wonder that his stomach finally became too busy making trouble to have time to work for him!

Woods Hutchinson says we all need at least three hours of outdoor exercise a day. I wonder how many of us are too busy to take it? Probably about nine out of ten.

Most of us need to drink more water than we do. We are just too ridiculously busy to remember to perform this perfectly natural act.

Remember, the man who is too busy to be healthy is also too busy to be happy. Too busy to be a good companion and too busy to be as efficient as he should be.

Are you?

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

"The idea that children leave school to go to work because their parents need the money, is vigorously combated in a bulletin just issued by the United States Bureau of Education."

I copy the above from the Gazette of May 30th.

The writer goes on to say that the number of girls leaving school between the ages of 14 to 16 years is rapidly increasing.

Not very encouraging is it? Some one is asking, "What? Is it the boys or the girls who want to leave school at this age and for lack of proper training go through life with a handicap?"

Or is it the parents who stand back of these girls and boys?

I'm inclined to lay the blame on the parents. A girl or boy of 13 or thereabout is a very irresponsible person, indeed. One that needs careful care and guidance to help them safely through the years when they do not even understand themselves.

The way—or one way—to keep a child in school is to keep them interested in their work. To do this, constant daily attention and hearty home cooperation is needed.

They must be taught at home—the necessity of keeping up with their class, it will stand them well in hand when they're grown up in the crowd.

A child should be taught that going to school is a very important business and that they are engaged in an essentially necessary work, that of getting an education.

Now, parents would devote a little more time to the affairs of our children it would be about the best investment of time that we could possibly make.

The trouble with so many of us is that we don't credit our growing children with the good sense and keen intellect that they really possess. To send a child to school well groomed is another thing, but to send a child to school with a mother making a slave of herself, No! She can be the managing member—she can train the little ones to brush their hair, to clean their teeth, to see that their shoes are clean, and their finger nails well kept.

It takes time to keep children up, but isn't that what mothers are for? To put our time in on our children? Is there any other work that will eventually bring better returns?

Now I am not for a mother making a slave of herself. No! She can be the managing member—she can train the little ones to brush their hair, to clean their teeth, to see that their shoes are clean, and their finger nails well kept.

It takes more time to teach a child all the little ways of cleanliness than it does for the mother to perform the work herself, but when the child does these things for himself he is forming habits that are invaluable.

By all means in our power let us aid our children to stay in school. There is something radically wrong with the parents who cannot control their children. They don't start early enough in the child's life in helping them to help himself by self-government and self-control.

A child is plastic clay in his parent's hands and it is a parent's duty to guide a child and teach it the while to guide itself.

If to us might be given the power or privilege of raising the curtain of the future and peering into the dim uncertain years that lie ahead of our children how clearly we would see the vital need of an education for them.

This power is denied us; but we may use common-sense methods. Let us do so! Let us tell ourselves that you, dear mother, your girl and mine, shall grow up to have that which no accident, misfortune or man can ever take from them—a good education.

Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

"Why," she said to me, "I never saw a wash boiler nor wash board, neither did I know of any of the new modern devices for labor saving either in washing, cooking or keeping house."

Let us take time to furnish a home and care for it, not a large one—a living room, dining room, bed room, kitchen and bath—and our average June bride is not going to spend over $500 for this, or if she has $1,000 or more it should be planned with the same careful judgment.

As the kitchen is of the most vital importance we will start with that. Eating is the principal industry in our city, and yet we have treated it with absolute indifference in educating our girls. Talk about a "drudge" in the kitchen, which has been a favorite word to use, it has no comparison with that given on the piano stool for fifteen years. June brides, watch the kitchen and keep your husbands.

In buying utensils, the best is the cheapest. It is a good maxim to bear in mind. One who makes a trial of different grades has ample opportunity to prove its worth. On the other hand, a medium priced article in the hands of a skilled worker may outwear the very best utensil in the hands of a careless one. Many accessories in the kitchen have come to be looked upon as "must haves" through long use. The evidence of utility in everything, together with good taste and judgment in every selection, is the great essential in buying kitchen as well as other utensils. Here are what should be purchased:

Bowls, five assorted; bread board, bread box, cake pans, layer, two; carpenter sweeper, casserole, chair, chopping knife and bowl; coffee mill, coffee pot, colander, covered roaster, custard cups, dish pan, double boiler, 2 qt.; drainer, egg beaters (dover and flat wire beater), flour and sugar brushes, funnel, garbage pail, small; grater, high stool, kitchen cabinet or table, lemon squeezer, glass; loaf pan, measuring cup, flour sieve, food chopper, vegetable knife, muffin pan, pans or basins, two or more; pie plates, two or more; potato and vegetable press, potato ricer, range, receptacle for flour, sugar and cereals, condiments, molasses, etc.; refrigerator, rolling pin, salt box, scales, sink strainer, skimmer, slotted wooden spoon, soap shaker, spatula, sponge cake pan, steam cooker, steel or aluminum spider, steel knives and forks, three; sauce pans, three, 1 qt. to 3 qt.; strainers, tablespoons, three; tea kettle, tea pot, teaspoons, three; toaster, vegetable and pudding dishes, two; waste basket, closely woven.

For the Laundry.
Blueing, boiler, clothes basket, clothes horse, clothes line, clothes pins, clothes pole, clothes stick, ironing board, irons, small vegetable or nail brush for rings, soaps, starch, washboard, medium or better, a washing machine, wash tub, bench, wash tubs, two medium, one large; wringer.

Where there are stationary tubs, no tubs are necessary. Electric irons are desirable if possible. Watch for article on Dining Room.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.
Something will anger you deeply, but do not act while the feeling lasts, for keen regret will surely follow. Risks and games are not favorable for you.

Those born today will have the virtues and faults of a generous nature, for under restraint, when young, will cause the false glitter of gay life to be all the more attractive. Familiarity with and unprejudiced explanations will give the mental balance needed by these children.

Strength of a Nation.
The foundations of a strong and virile race are laid in the rural districts, and if agriculture be allowed to decay, no development of industries in the heart of the town will atone for the loss to the nation of that greatest of all industries which makes wealth while it creates manhood.—Percy Alden.

By Their Speech Ye Shall Know Them.

A traveler who believed himself to be sole survivor of a shipwreck upon a cannibal isle hid for three days in terror of his life. Driven out by hunger, he discovered a thin wisp of smoke rising from a clump of bushes inland, and crawled carefully to study the type of savages about it. Just as he reached the clump he heard a voice say: "Why in—did you play that card?" He dropped on his knees and, devoutly raising his hands, cried: "Thank God, they are Christians!"

Raw Meat Popular in Italy.

Travelers report that in Italy the devouring of raw meat in restaurants is now so common as to be to women, at any rate—a public annoyance. The waiter brings the slab of beefsteak and exhibits it to the eyes of the man about to lunch, who watches the process of cutting and of sprinkling with a little oil and vinegar. Over the dish is then poured a raw egg.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen years old and am deeply in love with a young man of twenty-one. He has not a very good family, but I have never heard anything against him. My father forbids me having anything to do with him. I allow this young man to kiss me any time he wants to and meet him any time from the house. We have planned to get married twice, but my father has found it out and has prevented it. My mother died when I was six years old and I have had a stepmother for about eight years and she and my father have been recently separated. So as I have no mother, to give me good advice on this matter I will ask yours, with many thanks.

Be guided by your father, my dear, until you are a year or two older. If the man really loves you he will be willing to wait that long. You are really too young to marry now, and you decide that this man is the one you will be happy with all your life. He may be all right, but it is risky marrying into a family with a bad reputation. Be able to support a wife comfortably?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—We are sisters, thirteen and fifteen, and have five brothers. Is our family too large? (2)—I should like a girl before going to a factory? (3)—Are we too young to keep friends with boys or have them come to our house? (4)—Is it proper for a girl to ride on a motorcycle? (5)—Is it proper for a girl to wear a necktie to a boy's friend? (6)—What wages should a girl of fifteen get in helping in housework and in the garden?

WORRIED SISTERS.
(1)—Not if your parents are able to support and educate you properly. (2)—She should be sixteen, according to law. (3)—I hope you have a good many nice boy friends. (4)—It is dangerous. (5)—I see nothing wrong in it, if they are acquainted. (6)—If she is helping at home she should be glad to do it for the sake of helping. Keep things looking nice. Away from home you should get the wages usually paid for household help.

Things Worth Knowing.
Borax is one of the best exterminators for ants. Pantry shelves and cracks should be sprinkled with it. The floor of a closet is wiped with gasoline or benzine after being scrubbed it helps to keep off insects. Hot water marks can be removed from japanned trays by rubbing with sweet oil. When the marks have disappeared, rub with dry flour and a soft cloth.

The Table.
Sun Preserved Strawberries—Place in a saucepan one quart of granulated sugar with just enough boiling water to dissolve the sugar. Make a sirup of this, drop berries in and boil briskly for about three minutes. Skim, pour on a platter and set out in the sun. At night bring them in and the next morning place them in the sun again. Continue this process until they are of the proper consistency. If carefully prepared and sealed berries are used every berry will be whole.

Rice Custard—Cream a scant tablespoon of butter with four tablespoons of sugar, add three well-beaten eggs, a quart of milk, a quart of rice, a quart of water, and a scant teaspoon of salt. Beat hard and bake in a buttered pudding dish until set. Eat hot with sauce or cold with cream.

Orange Jelly—One-half envelope gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one-half cup boiling water, one-half cup sugar, juice of one-half lemon and one-half pint of orange juice. With a spoon to avoid the oil in the rind. Soak the gelatin in cold water five minutes and dissolve in the boiling water. Add the sugar and stir until dissolved and cooled. Strain through a cheese cloth and add the lemon and orange juice and turn into a wet mold. Serve very cold.

Peanut Butter—Shell and skin freshly roasted peanuts and put them through the finest section of the meat grinder. They should be ground to a chowder. Add half as much butter as you have peanuts and beat with a spoon to a smooth paste with a silver spoon. If you wish the paste to be salty add a little more salt, than is supplied by the butter.

Cake of Savoy—Separate with care five yolks of eggs and put them in a plate with one-half a pound of sugar and the outer skin of a lemon. Beat until the mixture becomes white; add one-fourth of a pound of potato flour, and do not beat the paste too hard. Beat to a snow the whites of eggs and mix them with the paste. Pour the whole into a form greased with butter, and sprinkle with sugar. Cook for an hour in a slow oven.

Steamed Ginger Pudding—Put one cupful of milk and three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and when boiling throw in quickly three-quarters of a cupful of flour and stir until thick and smooth. Take from the fire, beat for a moment, cover and set away until cool; then add one at a time five unbeaten eggs, mixing and beating each in thoroughly before adding the next one. Add three ounces of preserved ginger cut in small bits, and two tablespoonfuls of the sirup. Butter a pudding mold, dust it with sugar, pour in the mixture and steam for two hours.

There are dollars in this newspaper and they are coming your way. In the Want Ad section there are Real Estate investment dollars, Second Hand Furniture Dollars, Dollars from the Boarder or Roomer you may secure, Dollars from the help you can get and dollars for the service you can render.

HELP FOR WORKING GIRLS

Two Girls Tell Story of Their Illness and How They Found Relief.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."

—Miss AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 613 Seventh Street, New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because my periods were suppressed and I had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."

—Miss ESTELLE MACQUEEN, 110 Thwing St., Saint Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

GOOD NEWS

Many Gazette Readers Have Heard It and Have Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Janesville, are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame back and aching back is bad news more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. B. F. Jones, 419 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "My back was so painful that I had to go around all stooped over and sometimes there was weakness through my joints that made it impossible for me to stand. I did not sleep well and it seemed as if a weight was tied to my back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I got a box at the People's Drug Co. and began using them. They cured me and at that time I was pleased to make the fact known by means of a public statement. I take pleasure in confirming all I have previously said regarding Doan's Kidney Pills and add that I value them as highly as ever. I know that this remedy can be relied upon to correct any symptom of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE DAUGHTER OF DAVID KERR

By HARRY KING TOOTLE

Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

Now Ella was sneering at her. She knew how to choose knife-blades for words. In everything she said was the cunning and the cruelty of a lost woman. Gloria was suffering, she could see, but there was still another chord which would vibrate to misery. Since time began jealousy has been a flaming sword in the hands of an unscrupulous antagonist who knows how to use it. To make Gloria think that she was defending a man untrue to her, was something. To make her believe that she had been defeated by the greater charm of Little Ella herself, was far more.

"Do you think I'd let you bid that man if I'd loved you? Never. You don't know why he came here, but I do. He came to see me. He loves me."

She beat her breasts as she spoke to emphasize her words and her eyes sparkled with the challenge she had just hurled at the daughter of the boss. Gradually, bit by bit, the veneer of civilization had been chipped away. Gloria no longer saw the girl that separated them. She knew only that by cozening words this other woman was trying to make her think she had been robbed of her own. Her weakness left her. Now when she summoned all her strength, she found it did not fail. As Little Ella proclaimed that the man they were hiding had come to see her, Gloria sprang to the side of the bed, and cried with all the indignation of an overwrought soul:

"You lie!"

"That's what you say, but down in your heart you know it's the truth. It ain't the first time he's been here. Oh, he's told me about you, the boss's daughter, but it's me he loves."

The men were forgotten in this duel so elemental that it could have had the stone age for its setting. On one side, hate as bitter as the grave; on the other, love and faith stronger than death itself.

"Every word you utter is a lie," Gloria blazed. "If you loved him you wouldn't have called these cutthroats."

"Why don't you tell 'em yer the boss's daughter now?" taunted the other.

"Look here, Ella," Ryan broke in, "we're tired o' standin' here like fools. Quit yer gassin' an' make good."

"You'll git yours all right. She's not David Kerr's daughter. Don't you let her bluff you. I know where she hid 'im. I'll tell you where he is."

Gloria turned upon the men.

"I've told you the truth, and I've warned you. Don't you come a step closer." Then she threatened the woman, "If you dare to speak a—"

Little Ella was not to be intimidated. "When she dragged him in," she began, "she locked the door, an' then she—"

Gloria was standing at no great distance from the bed when Little Ella began her betrayal of Wright's hiding place. As she realized that in an instant the secret would be out, her eyes dilated with her look of hate. Then they narrowed to cruel slits, while a tremor ran through her body. One who knew the girl would scarcely have recognized her. Like some little creature of the jungle waiting for the kill, she seemed to crouch for the spring. Just as the woman was about to utter the words which would reveal where the newspaper man was concealed, Gloria was upon her. She seemed with one bound to have leapt the space that separated them.

"You Jeezabel!" she raged, and struck her fair upon the mouth.

Ryan and Kelly did not stir. The unexpected had happened, and they were spellbound.

ned. Her head fell over the side, and she lay as one dead.

Her rage was still hot upon her as she turned to confront the two men. "As for you, get out."

Ryan made one last half-hearted stand.

"Say, the boss hates that man. Are you really Dave Kerr's daughter?"

"And you need to ask such a question!" she stormed. "Ask Mike Noonan if you will, but beware of David Kerr! If ever you have cause to fear him, you have it now. My anger is his anger, and don't you dare defy the daughter of David Kerr!"

She took a step forward menacingly, as if she had strength to inflict the same chastisement they had seen administered to the woman. They did not stay to argue with her. Leaving Little Ella to her fate, they made a hasty retreat.

No sooner were they out of the room than Gloria put into execution what she had designed when they departed the first time. Rushing to the door she closed it hastily and pushed the washstand in front of it, wedging it under the knob. This done, she ran back and dragged Wright from his hiding place. There was no thought of the woman whose head hung over the side of the bed in such ghastly fashion.

Gloria lifted his head and dashed water upon his face. She watched him closely, and as she saw that it had no effect upon him, a sudden fear seized her and her cheeks were blanched. With trembling fingers she tore at his shirt and felt for the beat of his heart. She could feel its faint pulsation. He lived.

With a wild cry she flung herself forward in a deep swoon upon the body of the unconscious man.

CHAPTER XXI.

The one person who could have told how Joe Wright had come to visit Mike Noonan's lodging house was David Kerr. He had sprung the trap himself, never dreaming that his own daughter would be caught in it. When the light on the Interurban Railway had first started, at command of the boss, Jack Durken, a ward heeler, apparently had gone over to the enemy. The man had found employment in the circulation department of the News, and soon afterward the information reached Wright that one of his own employees was a former henchman of the notorious first ward leader, Mike Noonan. Durken was loud in his denunciations of David Kerr and his followers, and appeared willing to betray whatever he knew of the methods of the gang.

The Thought of Physical Injury Did Not Occur to Him.

The editor found him a fountain of information regarding the shady politics of Belmont. In reality Durken told only what David Kerr ordered him to tell. Wishing to establish Wright's confidence in the man, Kerr had him disclose many things of slight importance that were absolutely authentic. One of the charges continuously brought against the machine was that it was colonizing floaters in lodging houses in the low, thickly-populated river wards. Durken even admitted it when Wright asked about it, and several days later suggested a tour of inspection. The blood of the star reporter warmed in the editor's veins. The idea was tantalizing. It was one of those stories a good man would sacrifice half a year's salary to handle.

Without saying anything to anyone, the owner of the News thought of the expedition for several days. The more he thought of it, the more it appealed to him. The more it appealed to him, the less was the likelihood of his considering the axiom that in battle it is a general's duty not to get hurt. In fact, the thought of physical injury did not occur to him. He was a stranger to Belmont, no one knew him, and in the daytime there was no danger.

When Wright finally decided to investigate personally it was only a few days before the election. He determined that he would wander down into the first ward two days before the votes were cast to gather material for his story. The next afternoon, just on the eve of the election, his final attack on the machine would be an expose of ring methods of handling vagabond voters imported for the occasion.

This programme was being carried out as originally planned, notwithstanding the break with Gloria the previous day, when Wright was induced to go through Noonan's "hotel."

Here, deserted by Durken, who had been his guide, he had fallen into the hands of Turkey Ryan and Buck Kelly.

Although dazed by the unexpectedness of the attack, he had nevertheless managed to give a good account of himself. The cramped attic quarters in which they had fought had been in his favor. The two bruisers had been surprised by what a scientific boxer could do in a rough-and-tumble fight. To the momentary indecision resulting from his good defense Wright owed his escape from the room in which he had been trapped.

A stinging blow having taken all the fight out of Kelly, he lurched and fell forward against the door just as the newspaper man had managed to elude his assailants for the instant and slip out of the room. Forced to minister to his companion, Turkey Ryan had lost many valuable seconds before he could take up the pursuit. It was during this respite that Wright, groping blindly for the stair, had tripped and fallen, to be found unconscious by Gloria in front of Little Ella's door.

No one ever knew exactly what had taken place in Noonan's lodging house that afternoon in early spring. Returning from the mission with Dr. Norton, Mrs. Hayes was surprised to find the door of the Windermere woman's room fastened from within. When no response greeted her knock, surprise gave way to alarm, and she called upon Dr. Norton to aid her in opening the door. Gloria had not fastened it as securely as she had thought, and it required no great strength on the part of the physician to force it open.

Gloria was removed to Mrs. Hayes' home in a carriage as soon as she was revived. Little Ella, in a semi-conscious, delirious state, was hurried to the city hospital in a police ambulance. An examination having shown that Wright had sustained no serious injury, as soon as he regained consciousness he was taken to his own apartment.

David Kerr was not allowed to see his daughter. Although the exact nature of the shock to which she had been subjected was not known, since both Kelly and Ryan had disappeared, yet the physicians did not think it best in her nervous condition for her to see even her father. The following day she remained in bed, speaking never a word, busy with her own thoughts. The next day, that of the election, she dressed, but did not leave her room.

When it was seen that Gloria was under the cloud of a settled melancholy, there was debate how best to minister to her. Her very silence made the problem more perplexing. She uttered never a word by which they might pluck out the heart of the mystery. Strange as it may seem, she did not even ask about Joe Wright. She did, however, read the morning and afternoon papers carefully. In neither was there any reference to an attack on the editor. As her mind beat upon the bars of its new iron cage, it sufficed her to know that all must be well with him.

Joe Wright's injuries were not of a serious nature, yet it was thought best that he remain at home for several days. By means of the telephone and through the men who came to the house, he edited the News the day previous to election. Over the same telephone line came the cheering news the next night that the dominant party had been defeated. David Kerr's rule had been broken.

Nothing of a personal nature had been allowed to help contribute to this success. No mention had been made in the News of the assault on its editor in Mike Noonan's lodging house, because to Wright it had appeared as a personal matter. The day previous Gloria had denounced him and cried aloud for vengeance. He recognized that had Gloria not been mixed up in the affair the result might have been the same, but the personal element was what made him hold his peace.

The news that the day had been carried for good government was only a temporary intoxicant. There were a few moments of exhilaration when his real feelings were submerged in the general rejoicing that David Kerr had been given a more severe setback than he had ever before received. Then came the ebb of the tide, leaving him on the desolate shore of disheartening uncertainty. The past was a nightmare and the future a blank.

The tumult and the cheers had died away, the brass bands at last were stilled, his sitting-room with two windows on the street and its own private entrance had been cleared of tobacco smoke, and the reception he had held when it was learned the election had gone his way was at an end, when Joe Wright sat himself down alone in the quiet of the first hours of the morning to take stock of his future.

GETTYSBURG

THE FIRST DAY'S BATTLE

First Soldier Killed a Pennsylvanian - Death of Reynolds - Stories of John Burns and Jennie Wade - Meeting of General Gordon and General Barlow - Gloomy Day for Union Army.

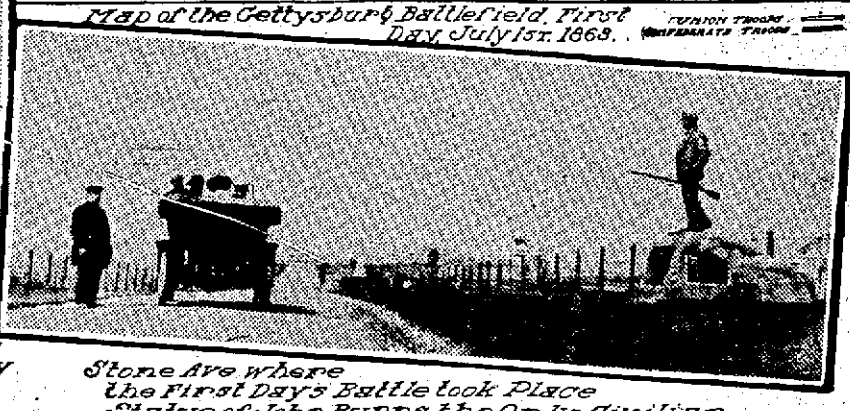

GETTYSBURG has an immortal place in history because it was there fifty years ago that one of the greatest battles of the world was fought; it was there that the only engagement north of the Mason and Dixon's line; it was there, it has been conceded, that the Confederacy met its most effectual check, for from that time on its fate though delayed was certain; and it is for these and other reasons it is fitting that it should be there that private and public bounty should be more generous in perpetuating the memories of that field of carnage than any other of that great strife between brothers.

It ministers to the pride of one as well as waves that of the other that the turning point in that terrific struggle between the States should be located on the north of that historic line, which divided the slave States from the free Commonwealths. To the North it means that an invasion by the foe has been repelled, while to the South there is consolation in the fact that the decisive battle of the war which sealed their fate was not fought on the battle-scarred soil of the Old Dominion.

After Chancellor'sville, Lee and his council of war determined to invade the North, and in a few weeks he was over-running southern Pennsylvania between Chambersburg and Harrisburg. The Army of the Potomac followed him to check his onward march and after some maneuvering portions of the two armies met just north of the city of Gettysburg—the Confederates coming in from the North, while the Union forces were to the forces seemed to be getting the worst of it when I suddenly saw the corps flag of General Reynolds. I had no one to communicate with so I sent one of my men to Buford, who rushed up and seized my glasses, and on seeing Reynolds said, 'Now we can hold the place.' Very shortly after this General Reynolds and his staff came up and seeing Buford in the copula he cried out 'What's the matter, John? The devil's to pay!' and going down the ladder he met General Reynolds, who said, 'I hope you can hold out until my corps comes up.' 'I reckon I can,' was Buford's reply. Reynolds then suggested that they ride out and see about it. 'General, do not expose yourself too much,' said Buford, but Reynolds laughed and moved nearer still. After giving some directions to Buford, which showed his determination to concentrate and to fight, General Reynolds again mounted his horse and rode away to meet the head of his column. The odds at this time was full of Confederate sharpshooters who were picking off men here and there. When General Reynolds, accompanied by his aides, Captains Mitchell and Baird and Orderly Charles H. Veil, rode up one of the Union regiments was approaching the woods. Reynolds exclaimed, 'Forward, men, forward for God's sake, and drive those fellows out of the woods!' He turned to look for his supporters and to hurry them on, but before he could speak again the bullet of a sharpshooter had penetrated his brain and he fell forward, dying upon his horse. His fall was not noticed by the troops who swept on and compelled Archer's brigade to surrender. General Reynolds' horse carried the body a short distance, when it was borne to the rear in a blanket just as Archer himself was being brought in a prisoner. The death of General Reynolds was a severe blow to the Union forces, and no casualty of the war brought more widespread mourning. A splendid statue has been erected to his memory near the spot where he fell. It will be noted that in this statue the horse has two feet off the ground, which indicates that its rider was killed. Statues on the field at Gettysburg where the horse has one foot off the ground indicate that the rider was wounded, while those having all four feet on the ground show that the rider escaped unhurt.

Even the death of General Reynolds could not stay the fury of the battle. General Abner Doubleday succeeded to the command of the First Corps. By one o'clock both sides had been greatly reinforced and the line of battle extended north of the town from Seminary Ridge to the banks of Rock Creek. About the middle of the afternoon the Union troops were being pressed back towards Gettysburg and five thousand men under the command of General Carl Shurz had been captured, nearly half of the right wing of the Union forces were either dead or wounded and the left wing had been forced to take refuge on Cemetery Ridge.

It was in the first day's battle that the old Constable John Burns made his appearance. This man has the distinction of being the only civilian who fought in the Battle of Gettysburg. He was born in New Jersey and was of Scotch parentage. He had as a mere boy served in the War of 1812, fighting against the British, and at the opening of the Civil War he tried to enlist but was declared too old. He became a constable of Gettysburg in 1862, and when the battle occurred he was in a fighting mood. After the first hour of battle Burns secured a gun from a wounded soldier and filling his pockets with cartridges rushed through the Union lines and begged permission to fight. His offer was accepted and he was ordered to the woods, but this was not to his liking and he persisted in going forward on the skirmish line. He was known to his friends as a dead shot and he picked off whomever of the Confederates he selected. During the battle he was wounded three times and left for dead on the field by the hospital corps. He finally dragged himself to a log house and fainted at the door. Later he was recognized and sent home where under his wife's care he recovered and lived until 1872. A splendid monument has been erected to his memory by the citizens of Gettysburg. It stands on Stone Avenue and shows the old man with his gun in his hand and in the costume he wore during the battle—baggy trousers and a swallow-tailed coat.

The only civilian killed during the Battle of Gettysburg met death on the first day. It was a young girl by the name of Jennie Wade. As the wounded soldiers were being brought into town it was discovered that the food supply was running short and several of the Gettysburg women began to bake bread. Jennie Wade who lived in a modest home on Baltimore Street, was one of them. All day long she worked, the bread being given to friend and foe alike. During the progress of the fight her home came in exact range of the two lines of battle and she was admonished to leave it but refused and continued her work. Just before the first day's battle ended a stray bullet pierced her heart and the girl fell dead in the kitchen of her home. At about the same hour a Confederate officer of high rank was killed near the house and his comrades were preparing a coffin for him, but before it was completed they were compelled to leave and the body of the dead girl was buried in the coffin intended for the Southerner. She was interred in the Citizens' cemetery at Gettysburg and a beautiful monument has been erected over her grave. It is said that both her father and her lover were fighting on the Union side at the time she met her death, and that her father was killed in the engagement.

was General Barlow he asked if he could do anything for him. Barlow declared that he was dying and expressed a wish to see his wife before death came. General Gordon rode away and dispatched a messenger to Mrs. Barlow, who was staying at the Eleventh Corps headquarters. She was conducted through the Confederate lines and found her husband still alive on the field. She had him taken to the Bender home nearby, where by her careful nursing he recovered. Twenty years after the battle General Gordon and General Barlow met at a banquet in Washington.

"Are you any relation to General Barlow who was killed at Gettysburg?"

"Yes, I am the man," answered Barlow. "Are you any relation to the General Gordon who was reported dead at Gettysburg?"

General Gordon was under the impression that Barlow had died soon after he left him on the field, and as there was a General Gordon of the Confederate army killed, each thought the other dead.

The first day's fight was a gloomy one for the Union forces, and had the Confederates known of the complete disorganization of the Federal troops they might have pursued and captured a large part of the army. General Meade was several miles from the field when he received the news of the death of Reynolds. He at once sent Hancock to take general charge until he himself should arrive. General Hancock came on the field late in the afternoon and his presence had a tendency to cheer the fallen spirits of the men. He assured them that reinforcements would arrive during the night and that victory was surely in sight on the morrow.

Thus ended the first day's fight on that great battlefield, hours before the arrival of General Meade, and had it been all to tell of Gettysburg, another defeat of the Army of the Potomac by Lee's gallant sons of the South would have been added to the many which had preceded it. But both of the time, the engagement there, and orders were issued to gather in their respective outlying forces for the terrible carnage which would follow on the morrow's morn. Lee had lost Jackson, the Chief of the Army of the Potomac, the Corps Commander the world has ever known, and there was no one to take his place. And for some unaccountable reason he failed to appear on that day and his exact whereabouts were unknown. But Meade had gathered in all his available forces and the two armies rested that night within a short distance of each other waiting the coming of the dawn, when the trumpets should sound the roll-call for the day—the last one on earth to many thousands of those brave soldiers who on that beautiful July day were to go to their final roll-call beyond the grave.

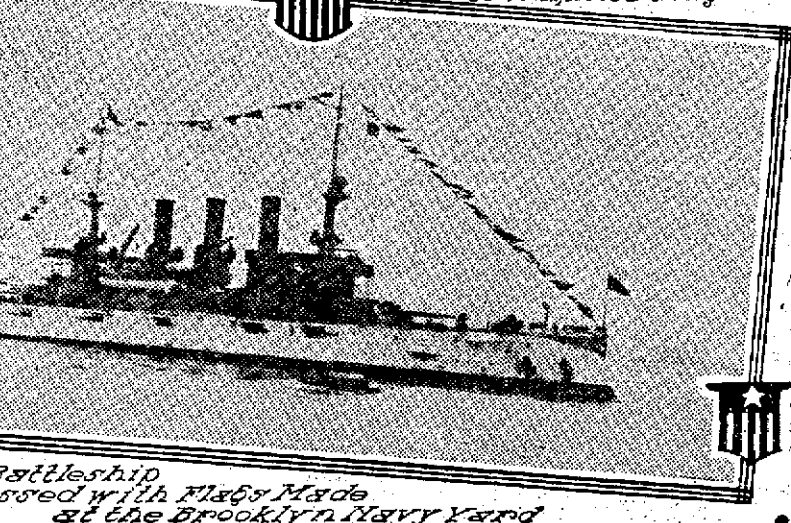

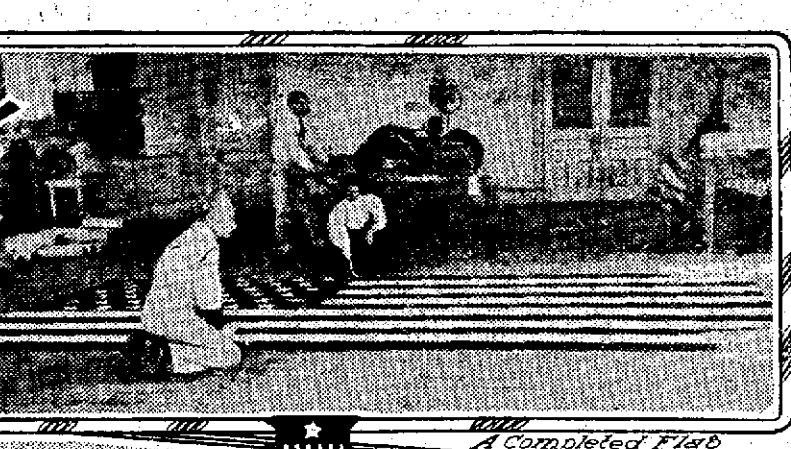

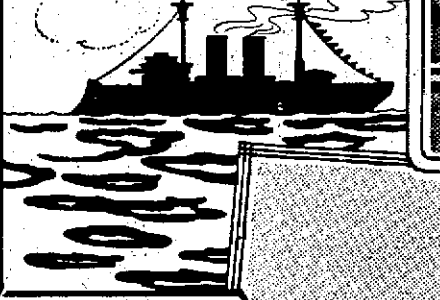

It has ever been your good fortune to enter a foreign port when an American man-of-war was anchoring there dressed for some holiday in all its regalia of flags, pennants and bunting, each having its appropriate meaning, you have seen flying proudly among them the Stars and Stripes—the most conspicuous and beautiful of them all. Whatever your national pride may be on such an occasion you probably do not know where, by whom and under what circumstances these emblems of nationality are made; and that back in your native land there is a body of faithful and skillful women whose labor and good taste are producing this part of the equipment of our battleships.

The manufacture of flags is, perhaps, the most picturesque work done for the Navy by women. Flag making is interesting everywhere, but especially so on the third floor of the Equipment Building in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where all the flags flying on our battleships are made. Mr. Thomas Maloy is the master flagmaker, but the general work is in charge of Miss Mary Woods. This lady came to the flag room in 1882, when only three or four women were at work. She does the best part of the marking and cutting and is unusually clever in making patterns for foreign flags, many of which contain the queerest and most fantastic figures.

During the working hours the room is a perfect riot of color, for piles of bunting of every conceivable shade are all about. Between forty and fifty expert needlewomen are employed, their wages ranging from $1.52 to $2.50 per day. All flags are cut from measurements, and the large ones are laid on the floor for that purpose and marked off with chalk. It is remarkable with what accuracy these women work, for there is rarely the variation of a fraction of an inch in the lots of several hundred flags ordered of one size.

The material used is purchased by sealed proposals and one year alone $50,000.00 worth of material was consumed, the quantity of bunting made up that year being one hundred and twenty-one thousand yards. About $20,000.00 was paid out for labor during the year. All the material must stand the fading test, which means soaking and washing in soap and water and afterward being exposed to the bright sun for several days. It must undergo the strength test as well and not tear under moderate weight. The flags are all made of bunting, although some silk is used in carrying out the designs in many of the foreign flags. An American battleship carries the flags of all nations and her equipment in this line consists of two hundred and fifty-five flags. These emblems cost the Government about $2,500.00. The flags used on each battleship fill a large sized delivery wagon.

The largest flag made is 36x19 feet, and the smallest one 36x19 inches. The Stars and Stripes are turned out in nine different sizes, and being simple in construction these flags require very little handsewing. The stars are cut with a machine known as a plunger and is operated by one of the five men employed to do the heavy work. The President's flag takes the longest time to make of any of the American emblems and is made in two sizes—14x10 feet and 5x3 feet. It consists of a dark blue background with the coat of arms of the United States in the center. The eagle must be embroidered by hand in silk—the most delicate and dainty workmanship being required. Several women are employed, whose sole duty is to embroider or tain parts of flags. The silk used on the Presidential emblem costs the Government nine dollars per pound. The pressing of a flag, too, requires a skillful hand for each and every part must be clear of wrinkles and the embroidery must be pressed in such a fashion as to make the embroidered figure "stand out." "This is no place for unskilled labor, I can assure you," said one of the pressers. "Of course, we use electric irons, but one must be exceedingly careful, for a scorched flag would not go, and as this is practically the finishing touch to the work just think of the loss in having to remake the flag, or at least replace the scorched part."

Some of the foreign flags are both difficult to make and costly as well, for the material used in them is far more expensive than that used for our own flags. In many instances the smaller the country the more costly the flag. This is exemplified in the case of both the Costa Rican and San Salvador emblems. The flag of the former contains two hundred and thirty-eight pieces and requires the labor of several women in its construction, while that of the latter country is the most expensive of all the foreign flags manufactured, costing about $52.50 per flag. Some of the foreign standards have to be made entirely by hand and the fitting of the figures is tedious work, but no matter how difficult the task Miss Woods and her assistants manage to put out perfect flags for all nations.

A rather humorous incident is told by a naval officer which proves how up-to-date the flagmakers really are, as well as how the United States Government is prompt in having flags ready for all occasions. As the story goes, shortly after the birth of a South American Republic a few years ago one of our battleships steamed into port of that country. She ran up the flag of the new Republic and saluted. Much to the surprise of the officers the salute was not returned. Finally, a small boat was seen approaching the battleship and a few minutes later an officer came on board, begging the loan of the flag of the new Republic, for as yet they had none at the fort. The captain ordered the emblem given to the man and a few minutes after the little boat reached shore, the American salute was returned with the borrowed flag waving over the ramparts of the fort. Before the flag was returned hundreds of natives came to view for the first time the new standard of their country which had been manufactured in Brooklyn.

The Siamese flag which has a white elephant in the center requires skillful needlework; for in the better class of flags the elephant must be embroidered in white silk. The emblem of the new Republic of Portugal also contains some rather expensive hand embroidery. The Moorish flag is the cheapest of all foreign flags and costs about twenty-one dollars.

In making these emblems of other lands it is sometimes necessary to have the silks and bunting dyed, for the exact shades are rarely obtainable. Of course, a shade darker or of a shade lighter, even though it would pass unnoticed by the average person, would not pass for every flag must be absolutely perfect in shading as well as in workmanship, no matter what the labor or expense may be. As each flag is finished it is marked with the number of the contract lot and stamped with the name of the country it represents.

All the portiers, port-hole and berth curtains for the ships are cut, hemmed and finished in the flag room. These are made of linen fabric. The table linen, cloth and napkins for the Navy are woven at Belfast, Ireland, and have the coat of arms of the United States in the center. They are sent to the flag room to be cut and hemmed. Thirty thousand yards of Russian crash is imported at a time to be used for dish cloths on shipboard, and these, too, are finished in this room, together with the thousands of towels used on the men-of-war. Table-covers for the officers' quarters are made of heavy felt cloth, embroidered in silk. This embroidery is done by a woman who uses a sewing machine, specially adapted for this purpose. The cloth cost the Government sixteen dollars apiece. The price of the same article when made on the outside is forty dollars. The letters for the baseball suits are cut out and sewed on by the flagmakers. The making of skylight blinds and the repairing of the life jackets also come under the supervision of this room.
